'COUP' CALLED ONE OF WAR'S DARING FEATS

Berlin and Tokyo Chortle But OWI Points Out That Duce's Voice Hasn't Been Heard.

NEVER HELD BY ALLIES

British Discount Story Former Premier Was Rescued By Nazi Paratroops.

(By Associated Press)

Berlin and Tokyo waxed lyrical today over the Nazi-reported "liberation" of Benito Mussolini.

"Not only Mussolini's personal friends, but the whole Japanese nation were overwhelmed with joy by the duce's liberation," the chief of the Japanese information bureau told a press conference, according to a Berlin broadcast recorded by the Associated Press.

"This feat was one of the most dramatic events of this war and Japan unreservedly admires the determination and loyalty of the fuehrer to liberate his friend who was doomed to death," the Japanese propagandist was quoted as saying.

Berlin said the "coup" was hailed in Axis-controlled capitals, declared that in Oslo, Norway the "local public is completely under the spell of the special communique" and that "from the military viewpoint this is said to be one of the most daring coups de main in world history and politically one of the greatest failures ever suffered by Britain and the United States."

The Nazi propagandist gave this "reaction" in other Axis-dominated capitals:

BRUSSELS: "News of Mussolini's liberation is the sensation of the day here. The Belgian public was deeply impressed."

BUCHAREST: "Correspondent Hans Heinrich said the news . . . aroused the greatest enthusiasm and satisfaction also in the Rumanian capital, especially those Italians who are loyal to their Fascist tradition. . . . The admiration of the man in the street is partic-

Where Allies And Nazis Gain In Italy---Mussolini 'Rescued'

Opposing forces in Italy are moving fast to gain advantageous positions for the coming, large-scale battle for that country. The Nazi agency DNB said that troops under Marshal Rommel had seized (1) Genoa, Spezia, Bologna, Verona, Milan, and Trieste. Berlin radio announced the seizure of Rome (2). U. S. and British forces (3) are battling their way inland near Naples. British troops occupied the naval base (4) at Taranto. A Swiss dispatch reported Allied landings at Brindisi (5). Allied headquarters said that a number of Italian warships had arrived safely at (6) the island of Malta. One of the most spectacular reports — still nothing fore than that — was that Benito Mussolini, (right) former premier of Italy had been rescued by the Germans. There was no immediate indication as to where he had been found or from whom he had been taken, but British spokesmen said he had never been in Allied hands.

COUNTY BOND DRIVE NEARS FIRST MILLION

$774,819 Subscribed With $130,500 State Purchase Due This Week.

GET CIRCUS TICKETS

Banks Holding 568 Passes For Ringling Show For Bond Purchasers.

Nearing the one million mark Richland county's Third War Loan drive today moved steadily along toward the $6,060,000 goal with $774,819 in bonds already purchased.

Purchases amounting to $235,325 were added to the total over the week-end as 228 more persons subscribed to the biggest war loan drive yet attempted.

In addition to the total reported today by Chairman H. G. Brunner, the state will purchase $130,500 worth of bonds in Richland county Wednesday as a part of a state-wide $15,000,000 bond purchase divided among the counties.

It was reported from Columbus today that the Industrial Commission, the Teachers' Retirement System, the State Employes Retirement System and the School Employes Retirement System also will participate in the purchase.

Brunner said today Ringling Bros., Barnum and Bailey circus appearing in Mansfield Saturday afternoon and evening, Sept. 18, had set aside 585 tickets to be given free to bond purchasers.

Tickets may be obtained at any bank by persons who purchase bonds this week exclusive of payroll deduction purchases. They are subject to 22 cents federal tax.

For the afternoon performance the circus has set aside 16 tickets for purchasers of bonds of $500 or more, 48 for those who purchase $100 or more in bonds, 64 for $50 bond purchases, 160 for $25 bond purchasers.

Of the 280 free tickets for the evening performances, 64 are for purchasers of $500 bonds or more, 48 for $100 bond purchasers, 64 for $50 bond purchasers, and 112 for $25 bond purchasers.

Brunner estimated $62,800 worth of bonds would be sold if all the free tickets were taken.

Germans Send Fresh Troops Against Yanks

American Fifth Army Bears Brunt Of Fighting; British Eighth Moves Across Toe Of Italy Without Meeting Much Opposition.

BULLETIN

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NORTH AFRICA—(U.P.)—The American Fifth army beat off repeated heavy counter-attacks on the Salerno front south of Naples today as the Nazi 16th panzer division battled desperately to hold open an escape corridor for their troops falling back from southern Italy.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—A bitter and bloody battle raged into its fifth consecutive day around the American Fifth army's Salerno bridgehead today with growing German forces resisting desperately the determined penetration into their hill positions girding the plain and protecting the broad port of Naples.

The British Eighth army, speeding steadily northward from the Italian toe against little or no enemy opposition, captured the port of Crotone, 110 miles from the southern tip of the peninsula, and found that harbor in good condition for Allied use, a communique from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced.

The British force landed at Taranto—the eastern leg of the Allied invasion which had been thrown across the saddle of the Appennines—swiftly extended its hold on the entrance to the Adriatic after the capture of Brindisi. While reinforcements poured ashore to strengthen this right wing of the Allied assault, small German forces left in the vicinity were being pushed back rapidly.

(The British radio broadcast that Brtish had captured Altamura, 22 miles west of Bari. Bari is approximately 55 miles north of Taranto and an important port on the Adriatic. It is 65 miles up the coast from Brindisi. The broadcast was heard by NBC.)

Previously elements of the first German parachute division had been encountered in the push up the Adriatic shore, but whether these were the forces remaining to oppose the advance was not stated.

The main bodies of enemy troops in southern Italy were still converging toward the big Naples-Salerno battle, however, and it was there that the crucial action was being fought.

"Very heavy fighting continues in the area of the Fifth army at Salerno," said the communique. "The Germans are resisting desperately our determined thrusts to break through their positions."

Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's chief of staff in this critical battle, Allied headquarters disclosed, is 44-year-old Maj. Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther of Platte, Neb., rated among the United States army's smartest tacticians and organizers.

(Also indicating fierce fighting in the Salerno area, the German communique said Nazi troops were throwing hard punches of their own in the northern part of the battle area and threw back Allied forces "to the town and coastal strip"—presumably Salerno.

It was conceded, however, that the Allied forces southeast of Salerno were making strong thrusts "to break through mountain position east of the coastal plain.")

OPA ANNOUNCES PRICE CUT-BACK

Promises Cost of Living Curb Through Reductions on Numerous Items.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON General Manager Chester Bowles of the Office of Price Administration today announced a sweeping price reduction program designed to lower the cost of living to consumers by 2.3 per cent and effect substantial savings in retail prices of potatoes, lard, apples, oranges, and other products.

The roll back would be accomplished through a $100,000,000 government program of transportation subsidies, government crop purchase and resale, and in the case of peanut butter and probably lard, rollback subsidies within the financial limits set by congress.

Partial effects of the program will be felt by mid-October or November, Bowles told a press conference.

It will be followed up with a price program on winter fruits and vegetables, which Bowles said would bring their prices down to "about 15 per cent less than last winter."

The $100,000,000 now is available, but additional funds from congress will be necessary, Bowles said, in order to hold down the price of milk.

ACT ON LEVY

Commissioners Vote to Renew Half Mill T. B. Tax.

A resolution passed by the Richland county board of commissioners today will put on the November ballot the question of continuing the half mill levy for the care of indigent tubercular cases in the county.

Originally passed for a five-year period, the levy will again be in effect for five years if voted in by Richland countians at the fall election. A majority vote is needed to put the levy into operation.

Auditor Norman L. Wolfe today estimated the levy would bring in $50,000 each year, slightly more than in other years. He said this increased revenue is needed to operate the county tuberculosis sanatarium since general living costs are higher.

BEGINS TOUR

Brazilian War Minister to Inspect U. S. Military Centers.

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Maj. Gen. Eurico Gaspar Dutra, Brazilian minister of war, today began a week's tour of military installations and other war centers in the New York area.

The general, accompanied by a number of other Brazilian military officials and American officers, arrived by plane late yesterday from Detroit.

Six-Point Hull Program For Better Post-War World Set Up

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — A six point American government plan for a better world order today was being proclaimed to mankind.

The six rules of conduct for a sane society of nations after the war were advanced by Secretary of State Cordell Hull in a radio speech last night.

In one of the most momentous declarations of American war and peace aims ever made by the secretary of state, Hull outlined this government's proposed rules of conduct for relations between nations as follows:

"1. All peoples who, with a 'decent respect to the opinions of mankind,' have qualified themselves to assume and to discharge the responsibilities of liberty are entitled to its enjoyment:

"2. Each sovereign nation, large or small, is in law and under law the equal of every other nation;

"3. All nations, large or small, which respect the right of others, are entitled to freedom from outside interference in their internal affairs:

"4. Willingness to settle international disputes by peaceful means, acceptance of international law and observance of its principles are the basis of order among nations;

"5. Non-discrimination in economic opportunity and treatment;

"6. Cooperation between nations in the spirit of good neighbors, founded on the principles of liber-

YEP, UNDERWEAR DROOPS AHEAD

OPA Cuts Button Sewing Off Laundry Services.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Droopy underwear became an official style note for wartime bachelors today when the Office of Price Administration authorized laundries to quit replacing buttons on underwear or pajamas without lowering prices.

It is one of the "frill" services which laundries no longer need perform, and unless the unattached male is handy with needle and thread, or knows somebody who is, he may have to keep his shorts up with nails, baling wire, or bits of old chewing gum.

Outer shirts will continue to be worn with buttons, as the new order does not regard shirt-button replacement a "frill."

PERSHING'S 83

Follows War's Progress From Walter Reed Hospital.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Gen. John J. Pershing — the famous "Black Jack" of the first World war—today marks his 83rd birthday, at Walter Reed hospital, surrounded by soldiers of World War II.

The AEF commander of 1919 plans no birthday celebration. His life at Walter Reed is uneventful and his visitors few. Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief-of-staff who was Pershing's aide-de-camp between 1919 and 1924, is among those whom he most often sees.

While the general is forced to follow this war from the confines of his hospital room two men who served with him and were his proteges are following in his victorious footsteps.

They are Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Allied commander in the southwest Pacific and Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander-in-chief of Allied forces in North Africa.

Tin Cans Ready? New Collection Opens Next Week

Those tin cans Mansfield and Madison township housewives have been saving all summer will be collected next week when a new salvage drive gets under way in the city and township area, civilian defense officials said today.

Collections in Mansfield will start next Monday in the First ward with truckers scheduled to visit the Second ward Tuesday and the other four wards in order during the rest of the week. Shiny cans that have been flattened must be placed in boxes or other containers at the curb in front of homes where the collectors can find them.

Eight collection depots for the suburban areas outside Mansfield have been set up at convenient lo-

2,300 Look Over Exhibits In Week-End Of Garden Displays

Richland county vegetable, fruit, and flower growers exhibited their season's produce to nearly 2,300 persons over the week-end at the county's first Victory Garden Harvest show at the Mansfield Armory, winning close to $250 in prizes, the show committee reported today.

The Victory Garden committee, sponsor of the festival, was pleased with the attendance and described the show as a success. Members of the committee were compiling the prize list today so the winners can get their prize money.

A stream of spectators moved through the Armory Saturday and Sunday with the largest attendance chalked up Sunday afternoon.

Boys and girls at the Richland County Children's home were among the major prize winners, at least six of the youngsters taking honors for their vegetables and flowers which were grown in the home gardens. Among the winners were Virginia and Lena Stake, sisters; Geraldine Pesano, George DeWeese, Douglas Cass, and Charles Markwell.

Approximately 60 first prizes were awarded in the various classifications of fruit, vegetables, flowers, and canned goods. Winners of more than one first place award included Frank Honeberger, Woodland road, Patsy Russell of Lucas; Mrs. Stanley Balliet, 116 Hedges street; Mrs. Clarence Way, 18 Wellington avenue, and Mrs. Benton Beal, Mansfield.

ARREST JUMP BRINGS WARNING

14 In Court on Traffic Counts, Judge Hints Penalties To Be Hiked as Curb.

In one of their busiest weekends in recent months, Mansfield police and state highway patrolmen arrested 14 drivers for traffic violations, nine of them for speeding.

After fining five of the motorists today in municipal court, Judge H. H. Schettler asserted that "maybe a stiffer penalty for speeders would do something to put a stop to some of it."

"We have been asked to drive 35 miles an hour, but more speeders are coming into this court all the time," he said. Judge Schettler estimated that between 30 and 40 speeding cases are heard monthly in his court.

Cited today in municipal court were Fred H. Fisher, Lexington, R. D. 1; Hiram Young, Mansfield; Orlando J. Bishop, Mansfield, all fined $10 and costs for speeding; Joseph J. Oskochil, Cleveland, and Charles W. Marchant, 111 Stewart avenue, fined $15 and costs for unsafe operation. The driving rights of both Marchant and Oskichil were suspended for 60 days. Marchant's car figured in a collision with another on U. S. Route 30 east of the city Saturday night, state patrolmen said.

John Martinez, Galion, forfeited $16.30 bond by failing to appear for hearing today in municipal court. John H. Hawk, Mt Vernon, R. D. 2, arrested for speeding on U. S. Route 42 northeast of

Man Arrested For Arson Probe As Fire Routs Six

Police today held a 40-year-old Mansfield colored man as an arson suspect after fire gutted a two-story residence at 540 Lily street about 4 a. m. today, forcing six colored occupants of the house to flee to safety.

Mrs. Lillian Jones, colored, owner of the house, said the man had threatened to "get even" with her, and she told firemen she believed he had set the house on fire.

Acting Fire Chief L. R. Zimmerman said the blaze started outside the house near a telephone line that had been disconnected and obviously was the work of an arsonist. Detective Lee Remy, investigating the case, added that the blaze obviously had been started by some one outside the building.

Firemen from Central and No. 2 stations battled the flames for more than an hour, saving the building. Contents were almost a total loss, Zimmerman said.

LEWIS ACTS

Calls Policy Committee on Coal Negotiations.

WASHINGTON— (U.P.)—President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers today summoned members of the UMW's international policy committee to a meeting here next Thursday to discuss current negotiations with soft coal operators over portal-to-portal pay and proposed lengthening of working hours.

In announcing the meeting, the UMW said that "while progress has been made" in discussions with coal operators, "no definite agreements have been reached."

Since the latter part of last month, the UMW said, International officials and district presidents have been talking with Illinois, northern Appalachian and southern Appalachian soft coal operators.

GROWING: More Italian War Vessels Reach Haven At Malta

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Another Italian naval force arrived at Valletta, Malta, today, including the 23,000-ton battleship Giulio Cesare, the 5,000-ton seaplane carrier Giuseppe Miraglia, four destroyers and a number of submarines.

The arrivals brought to at least 38 the known number of Italian warships in Allied hands, and naval authorities waited for word of other arrivals from a score of Mediterranean bases.

Six of Italy's seven battleships now have been accounted for. Five are in Allied hands, the Roma was sunk by German planes, and only the 35,000-ton Impero remains unreported.

The 35,000-ton battleships Italia and Vittorio Veneto and the smaller 24,000-ton Andrea Doria and Duilio, as well as six cruisers, eight destroyers and 14 submarines arrived at Malta late last week, shortly after the armistice was announced.

A dispatch from Madrid, however, said that an Italian cruiser and four other warships, destroyers and gunboats, had been interned at Port Mahon in the Balearics for overstaying the 24-hour leave as provided by international law.

Two other Italian destroyers, the dispatch said, departed from Pollensa, Mallorca, one of the Balearic islands, last night after landing 25 wounded.

Seven of Italy's 10 known cruisers have joined the Allies and

ATTACK: Japs Say Yankee Bombers Have Struck At Kurile

BULLETIN

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, SOUTHWEST PACIFIC—(U.P.)—An Allied spokesman said tonight that announcement of the capture of Salamaua, New Guinea, could be expected in "a matter of hours," as American and Australian troops advanced swiftly from the south and west after taking the Japanese airdrome a mile from the town.

(By International News Service)

LONDON—The Japanese Domei agency reported today that 18 American bombers attack installations in the northern Kuriles yesterday.

Eight of the raiders were alleged to have been shot down during the attack, specific target of which was not revealed. The great Japanese naval and air base at Paramushira, 800 miles west of the Aleutian island of Kiska and 1,200 miles northeast of Tokyo, is located in the northern Kuriles.

The Japanese dispatch admitted two transport ships were set afire and claimed "extremely light" damage was inflicted on land installations.

Domei also conceded the loss of one Japanese plane, but asserted it was destroyed when its pilot "boldly crash-dived into an enemy plane."

The dispatch did not identify the type of the American bombers that carried out the assault, but it was presumed that heavy bombers based in the Aleutians negotiated the round-trip flight of at least 1,600 miles to rain their explosives on installations guarding the northern approach to Japan itself.

(FCC monitors quoted a later Domei broadcast as reporting that the raid, carried out in the early morning, was made by 12 Mitchell B-25 medium bombers and six of

Final Touch Is Given By Good Perfumes

By MME. QUI VIVI

If you have chased yourself from one shop to another in a still-hunt for that foreign perfume you have used for years, don't get into a dither, and think life has nothing to offer you. There's a war on. Honest to goodness, there is! And it may surprise you to discover that some of the American perfumes are sweet, and precious—So precious that you'd better go slow with them, treasure every drop.

Perfume should be used ceremoniously — never casually—even though you may have a stock of this form of bottled goods. A small vial of a glorious, floretted odor is worth more than a quart of perfume that is strong enough to work in the trenches. These horrors smite the public nose, and the public resents the insult. Used profusely, at home, they can make members of the family ill. More than all else, they suggest lack of taste, if not vulgarity. We have our own opinion of women who float about in strong, musky auras and seem to enjoy it.

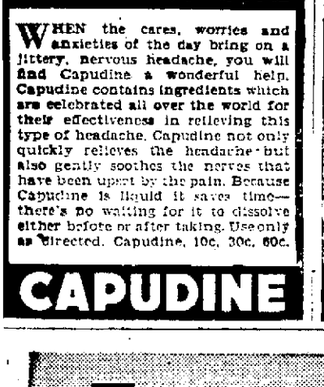

In the Victorian period the handkerchief was scented, also the backs of the dainty hands that were kissed by cavaliers. Not now. Mrs. Modern uses an atomizer—sprays her chest and arms after the bath — knowing that the warmth of the flesh will cause the alcoholic content to evaporate, leaving only the flower essences.

If Mrs. Modern is going to a dance, she puts a few drops of perfume on the hem of her skirt. Just a few. She's stingy with perfume. A little is bewitching, intriguing; a drop too much ruins the effect. There's such a thing as perfume casting personality into the shade, just as overdressing makes clothes seem more important that the wearer.

Should it happen that you do not possess an atomiser, you can buy a glass, perfume rod. Dip it in the perfume, pass it over ear lobes and neck; then you won't get an overdose of sweetness. Never apply a perfume to your hair, even if it is freshly washed. Sweat and sebaceous glands in the scalp work all the time. The chemicals they deposit on the flesh change the character of perfume, and not for the better.

Sweet perfumes do something to a woman's soul. They add the final touch when she slips into her grandest drygods, plies the items of the make-up box and arranges her glorious halo to best advantage. Though the bank balance may need building up, she feels like a million. Perfumes give her poise and balance. May sound silly, but it is true.

She will find some charming [illegible] blends on the counters.

Lose Airfield, Try to Keep Lae Path Open

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC—(AP)—The Japanese garrison at Salamaua today made desperate attempts to keep open a trail to Lae, its only channel of escape, so tight was the Allied surface and aircraft blockade along northeastern New Guinea's coastal barge route.

Australian pioneers who swam the flooded Francisco river Saturday had overrun prized Salamaua airdrome two miles from the city without encountering resistance.

Anzac troops who followed the pioneers across the river were last reported pushing Japanese remnants holding a ridge one mile and a half northwest of the airstrip.

At the same time seaborne Allied troops from the east and airborne forces from the northwest slowly closed their lines on Lae, 18 miles above Salamaua and, except for that tottering base, the only remaining Japanese position of consequence anywhere along the 175-mile rim of Huon gulf.

Britain Shifts Fleet Power to East

LONDON —(AP)— Great Britain was reported today transferring many of her heavier naval units to the Far Eastern fleet under Admiral Sir James Somerville for the opening of an Allied payoff drive against the Japanese in southeast Asia next month.

Lord Louis Mountbatten's new southeast Asia command forces probably will be strengthened, too, with the transfer of some thousands of commandos from Britain—perhaps for operations against such outlying points as the Andaman islands, which the Japanese have been using as a submarine and seaplane base, and against the Nicobar group in the Bay of Bengal.

It is anticipated here that the coming offensive will be on a far greater scale than anything attempted thus far in southeast Asia and will get under way some when the monsoon season ends.

ty, equality, justice, morality and law."

Asserting that "vigorous participation in efforts to establish a system of international relations based on these rules of conduct . . . is and must be a fundamental feature of our foreign policy," Hull said that in their acceptance and application by all peacefully inclined nations "lies the greatest hope of security, happiness and progress for this country and for all countries."

Expressing the belief that the United States intends to participate in an international security system after the war, Hull said it is "abundantly clear" that the cooperating nations must be prepared to "use force, if necessary, to keep the peace."

To be able to carry out the proposed six rules of conduct, Hull said nations should be willing to accept the following three fundamental propositions:

1. Each nation should maintain a stable government, and be free to decide for itself the forms and details of its governmental organization so long as it conducts its affairs in such a way as not to menace the peace and security of other nations.

2. Each nation should be free to decide for itself the forms of its internal economic and social organization—but it should conduct its affairs in such a way as to respect the rights of others, and to play its necessary part in a system of sound international economic relations.

3. Each nation should be willing to submit differences arising between it and other nations to processes of peaceful settlement, and should be prepared to carry out other obligations that may devolve upon it in an effective system of organized peace.

'Masked Marvel' of Movieland Found Slain in Field.

VENICE, Cal.—(UNS)—The "masked marvel" of the movies—David Gasper C. Bacon — was dead today, murdered under circumstances as mysterious as any film plot he ever played.

The actor, son of Major and Mrs. Gaspar G. Bacon of Dedham, Mass., died of a single stab wound in the back moments after his light British-made automobile lurched aimlessly from side to side of Washington boulevard and plunged into a bean field Sunday.

A search was instituted at once for a black-haired man in a dark coat, reported to have been seen in the small car with the 28-year-old Bacon a few minutes earlier.

Bacon, believed returning from a trip to the beach, was clad only in blue trunks as he staggered from the car, blood streaming from the fatal wound in his back.

WOMEN OF MANSFIELD

This call is urgent!

Over the oceans loaded troopships are carrying new thousands of soldiers to join our attacking armies at the front.

And every soldier who goes out to the fighting fronts must be replaced in an Army job behind the lines.

Women are needed in the WAC to take over these vital jobs. Hundreds of thousands of women are needed. You are needed—and right away.

In the WAC you'll do vital work. You'll share in one of the biggest experiences of your generation —and feel a deep sense of satisfaction in helping your country in its urgent need.

Are you an American citizen, a woman over 20 and under 50 years of age? Are you single, or if you're married, are you without dependents, without children under 14? Then you are needed in the WAC immediately. (If you are ineligible for the WAC because of age or family responsibilities, take over the job of an eligible woman and free her to join the WAC.)

Don't wait—every minute this war lasts costs the lives of American soldiers.

Get full details about the WAC today. Go to your nearest U. S. Army Recruiting Station, or mail the coupon below.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—The Nazi lecture business isn't what it was in the late 1930s when Hitler could take a country in a week-end. Often he needed only to make a speech to frighten one of the lesser satellites into joining up. Hitler's words then carried the terrifying impact of the dominant military force under his control.

Now what a contrast! His effort to rally the German people out of the shock of Italy's surrender showed plainly that making a speech must be difficult for Hitler now. Shouting isn't so convincing as it once was. Perhaps that is why he has been silent for nearly six months.

Clapper

What could Hitler say in face of events? A year ago it was easy. He was pushing his giant pincers attack on the Middle East. On one side Hitler was reaching for the Volga and on the lower side he was heading for Suez. Cairo was packed up and ready to flee at any hour. General Alexander was fighting to hold the bridge to the east while Timoshenko was struggling to hold the Caucasus.

They did hold, and frustrated the daring Axis strategy of trying to cut Russia from the Allies and using the Mediterranean line to connect the western Axis with Japan. We could have lost the war a year ago, and it was dangerously close to a stalemate.

Now the great blockade around Germany is drawing tighter. She is hopelessly cut off from Japan. The wall that seals Germany in is being moved closer by the Russian advance. All hope of the Germans breaching that eastern wall is gone now with the failure of the third summer attempt. The blockade on the Mediterranean front is sealed now beyond all hope of cracking. The line has moved up from North Africa into Italy. Hitler's chance of using Spain as a gateway for attack in the Allied rear has disappeared and his willing tool, Franco has lost his nuisance value for us.

The concentric line of the grand blockade has been drawn more tightly around the German fatherland, in the last year. The line is shorter and far stronger strategically, as for instance the distance by which Allied air power has moved up toward southern Germany now—by occupation of airfields in Italy.

One of the most devastating blows to Hitler is the failure of his chief counter-blockade measure—the submarine war. What a blow it must be to him to find that in August the destruction of German submarines was larger than the loss of Allied merchant ships.

Hitler had, in the last analysis, depended upon the submarine to strangle, or break the Allied supply lines from the United States. Without the American supplies, Allied victory would be extremely difficult. But Hitler's hope of achieving victory through the submarine is gone completely. He may come up with some new method of operating against our shipping, but he can never hope now to overcome the great lead in shipbuilding that we have achieved.

The danger of emphasizing these great Russian, Middle East and submarine victories—for they are the truly decisive victories that have saved the war for the United Nations—is that so many persons will conclude the war is almost over.

If you know whether the German civilian is going to give up and how soon, then you know about when the war will end.

If they are going to stick it out until we defeat them, some months must elapse. We have not yet knocked the German fighter force out of the air. Our opportunities will be restricted until the Germans have lost their ability to resist in the air.

WAR AND PEACE TOP CONGRESS WORK PROGRAM

Session Opening Tomorrow To Focus Attention on Domestic Impact.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Congress returns from a summer recess tomorrow to work for the war and prepare for the peace.

Immediate congressional attention was focused on the direct problems of war and their impact on the domestic economy—problems of rising revenue, of rationing, of mustering manpower for production and for the military forces.

Men and money appear likely to precipitate the first two debates, but perhaps before either issue—the father draft and taxes—is settled, congress will turn its attention to international policy.

Pending before the house is a simply-worded resolution, sponsored by Rep. Fulbright, (D., Ark.) which would put the house and senate on record in favor of world cooperation to preserve peace. Leaders are reported to have agreed to make it the first order of business.

The move to draft fathers after Oct. 1 vied for primary interest.

With less than three weeks in which to act, plans have been made for a swift test on Senator Wheeler's (D., Mont.) bill to ban induction of fathers at least until Jan. 1 and thus give congress time to inquire into the whole manpower problem.

Meanwhile, the house ways and means committee has begun the spadework on a new tax bill. The administration has asked for $12,000,000,000 in new revenue.

Here are some of the other major issues on the congressional calendar.

1. Benefits for the returning veterans.
2. Prevention of postwar unemployment.
3. Limitation on the size of the army.
4. National service legislation.
5. Compulsory military training after the war.
6. Extension of the commodity credit corporation (CCC) and its use of subsidies to hold down consumer prices.
7. Economies in government.
8. Repeal of the renegotiation law authorizing the government to recapture "excessive" profits on war contracts.
9. Reconversion allowances for industrial war plants.

OHIO CORN CROP NOW EXPECTED TO TOP AVERAGE

Will Almost Equal '42 Total, Federal and State Officials Say.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Federal and state farm officials estimated today Ohio would grow 163,875,000 bushels of corn this year, nearly equaling the 1942 crop of 185,752,000 bushels and surpassing the 10-year average (1932-41) of 142,091,000 bushels.

An early frost may kill a large part of the crop, however, farm authorities warned in a statement issued by the federal-state crop reporting service. Much of the crop is late, particularly in northern Ohio, they explained.

Week-end frosts caused widespread damage to tomatoes, soybeans, corn and garden crops in Medina, Columbiana, Wayne and Huron counties in northern Ohio.

The crop report said conditions on Sept. 1 indicated a yield of 47.5 bushels of corn per acre, compared with 56 in 1942.

The oats crop was placed at 30,024,000 bushels, against 51,824,000 bushels in 1942 and the 10-year average of 40,067,000.

Much of the soybean crop will need favorable fall weather to mature properly, the report continued. A total of 29,883,000 bushels is expected, compared with 28,819,000 in 1942.

Estimates for other crops, based on conditions Sept. 1, with 1942 production in parentheses, follow: Barley 840,000 bushels (1,428,000); buckwheat 370,000 bushels (216,000); potatoes 8,820,000 bushels (9,180,000); hay 3,430,000 tons (3,663,000); burley tobacco 12,600,000 pounds (12,10,000); cigar filler tobacco 7,665,000 pounds (11,956,000); and sugar beets 100,000 tons (595,000).

All fruit crops in Ohio promise much smaller production than in 1942. Commercial apples 2,338,000 bushels (6,384,000); peaches 325,000 bushels (678,000); pears 144,000 bushels (422,000); and grapes 16,800 tons (22,400).

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—Excuse me, how's that again? So we take over the British offshore possessions such as Trinidad, Bermuda, the Bahamas and British Guiana as our own territory because we have spent our money to fortify them and because, anyway, we think it isn't a good idea to continue to permit European nations to maintain outposts along our beach. That is a logical development of the Monroe Doctrine and while we are about it we might pick up the little odds and ends belonging to France and Holland.

Pegler

Yes, indeed, very just and logical and, after all, we did chase Spain out of here and we bought the Virgin islands from Denmark, complete with stock, fixtures and people.

And then, what?

Well, then, of course, the inhabitants of these colonial bits become American citizens with the right to vote in our national elections and participate in the benefits of our government, including political pork and relief. Their living standards, except in Bermuda, have never been up to ours and, of course, we would immediately go about correcting that by appointing a slew of Rex Tugwells to elevate them and teach them that the people of the United States are a breed of bleeding hearts pledged to free them from want even though we have to sacrifice a pretty deep slice off the top of our own living standard to do it.

Yes, and, being American citizens, they won't need passports to come to our mainland and settle in the cities and our people would be very happy to buy up and tear down great expanses of tenements and replace them with model apartments because, after all, congestion and uncleanliness cause unrest. And in the islands, themselves, we would feel obliged to eradicate the shacks and hovels and build nice little bungalows and community centers and swimming pools, libraries, schools and playgrounds and post offices and city halls and motor roads and all the other standard minimum necessities of the more abundant life listed in the regular New Deal catalog.

Why this gets more and more interesting, doesn't it?

And what about the wage standards of all these people?

I suppose we would have to do something about that, too, and this would be a fine opportunity for our department of labor and the labor relations board and our unions. We would toss the exploiters out and organize the barefoot peoples into banana pickers' locals of the A.F.L. and C.I.O. and ship down some of our more efficient murderers and communists and if the price of the island products should get out of range with plantation labor drawing six bucks a day we would just cut back the price to the public with a subsidy out of the United States treasury.

You couldn't very well organize them into separate republics because the smart individuals would boost themselves into office and hold massacres according to the painful precedents of Haiti and then if we interfered we would be messing up the Atlantic Charter and if we didn't we would be inhumane. And we couldn't take title and restrict their citizenship to their own islands because that would be the smart way and you will not catch us doing anything smart in such matters if there is a dumb and painful alternative.

The British, now, and the French and Dutch have never bothered themselves too much about the condition of their island peoples, but we are different. We would see that they got shoes even if they wore them around their necks and we would wire their premises for curling irons, radios, refrigerators and eggbeaters, all at the primary expense of the American people but to our eventual profit in inner satisfaction and world repute.

If we would throw in with Winston Churchill's idea of mutual association for military defense it might seem to the sordid mind preferable to leave sovereignty and citizenship and the administration headaches to the Europeans. But our conscience would nag us if we did it that way now that we have awakened to the opportunity.

SEVEN ON TRIAL AS SABOTEURS

Cleveland Plant Officials Are First To Be So Charged In World War II.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND — Seven former executives of the National Bronze and Aluminum Foundry company appeared in federal court today as the first manufacturers to be tried on charges of sabotage in World War II.

Indicted also on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government, the defendants include John L. Schmeller, former president of the firm, Frank I. Schmeller, former plant manager, and Edward Schmeller, former assistant plant manager.

The company is charged with reselling defective castings for war planes to the Packard Motor company in Detroit. Government officials brought the sabotage charges on grounds that the defendants "had reason to believe that their acts might injure, interfere with and obstruct the United States in carrying on a war."

Following investigation by FBI agents which resulted in indictment of seven officials, the defendants were ousted from their positions and the company reorganized.

Conviction for sabotage carries a maximum penalty of 30 years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine on each count and a conviction for conspiracy can result in a two year prison term and a $10,000 fine. Nine counts are included in the indictment.

While the trial may consume eight weeks, the jury selection is expected to be completed quickly. The defense has only 10 peremptory challenges and the government only six. Judge Emerich B. Freed is presiding in the case.

SECOND OFFICIAL DIES

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Walter L. Robison, sr., 61, president of the Youghegheny and Ohio Coal Co., and a director of the National Coal association since 1929, died yesterday in Cleveland Clinic hospital. His death followed by two days that of Harry L. Findlay, the coal firm's vice president.

Up and Down THE STREET

That wasn't a baseball game that attracted a crowd to a field on Robert Black's Woodside farm on Millsboro road Sunday afternoon. Civilian defense workers in Madison township Zone 11 were staging a public demonstration of what to do in the event of an air raid. Thirty-three wardens under the direction of Charles Green, head zone warden, divided the field into sectors, dispatched messengers to report injuries, and "rescued" four persons from buildings demolished by bombs. The new home pumps for fire fighting were tested on oil, gasoline, and kerosene fires, proving effective in every case, Green said.

Mansfield war plant workers who drive home or to their jobs before dawn are finding the traffic lights on again in the downtown area to protect them at intersections. Turned off from midnight to 7 a. m. during most of the summer, the lights now go into operation at 5:30 a. m., because it gets light later and the early-morning traffic has increased. While the absence of traffic signals during the last half of the night has not resulted in any serious accidents, Mayor W. J. Locke said a number of motorists have complained about the lights being off during the morning rush period. The lights were turned off during the summer at the request of the Office of Defense Transportation to help save gasoline and tires by requiring fewer stops.

The shortage of help has even hit the Mansfield Senior high school cafeteria. In former years, there has always been plenty of pupils who wanted to work in the cafeteria for one period each day to help pay for their lunches, but this year, Mrs. G. W. Hypes, manager of the cafeteria, is having trouble getting help. Consequently, the cafeteria has had a problem since school started last week.

ZIONISTS EXPECT PALESTINE AID

Look To U. S. To Play 'Due Role' In Establishment of New Haven In Native Land.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — The new president of the Zionist organization of America, Dr. Israel Goldstein of New York, says American Jews look "to our government to play its due part in bringing about . . . fulfillment of the international covenant with the Jewish people with respect to Palestine."

President Roosevelt in a week-end message to the 46th annual convention here declared "I cannot but express my horror at the cruelties visited upon innocent peoples by the Axis authorities in the territories they occupy."

"I am confident that the helpful contribution made by American citizens toward the establishment of a national home for the Jewish people in Palestine will be continued," he added.

Dr. Nahum Goldmann of Geneva, a leader of the world Jewish congress, in an address charged the Democratic nations with partial responsibility for "the unparallelled tragedy of the Jewish people for the last decade. . . . They would not stop the persecutions while they could," he declared.

The only solution to the Jewish problem which "is ripe for implementation," Goldmann asserted, is to establish a national Jewish homeland in Palestine.

Dr. Abba Hillel Silver of Cleveland declared that "what the world will do concerning the Jewish people will be the true index to the nature of the entire reconstruction problem to follow this war."

REDUCES CHARGE

Bricker Commutes Sentence of Life Termer.

COLUMBUS— (INS)—Governor Bricker today commuted the first-degree murder with mercy conviction to Stewart Christopher, Columbus, who has been serving a life term for complicity in a hold-up-slaying, to second-degree murder.

This action makes Christopher, who has been incarcerated since 1932, eligible for parole.

Christopher was convicted of participating in the holdup of a restaurant in Columbus in which the proprietor was fatally shot. The other man in the case is George Fremis, of Columbus, who is also serving a life term for the crime. Records show that Christopher did not actually enter the restaurant during the robbery but acted as lookout in the rear of the building.

ON BROADWAY-- By Dorothy Kilgallen

Ladies Who Sing With a Band.

SOMETIMES when a sentimental ballad sweeps the nation, scribblers stumble upon a human interest story behind the song.

The yarn may invoive the writer of the tune and the manner in which an unfortunate romance lit the authentic but profitably articulate torch that blazed a path to riches and renown. Or it may feature the performer who introduced the song and was thereby lifted from obscurity to stardom after coming perilously close to not doing the number at all.

Kilgallen

In the Broadway musical, "Early to Bed," there is a ditty sung with spanking satirical glee by the Misses Small, Kean, Angelus and Deering. Called "Ladies Who Sing With a Band," it offers lyricist George Marion, jr.'s, tongue-in-cheek formula for hurdling the Hollywood heights. It is a number done strictly for laughs, but no song in a long time recalls more stories concerning fame and the heart.

It's the title that makes you muse. "Ladies Who Sing With a Band." . . . Look where they came from and see where they've gone.

First, let's go back just a few years, to the time when Hal Kemp was newly married to Martha Stephenson, one of the town's prettier models. In the midst of a cross country barnstorming tour, Nan Wynn—the lady who sang with Hal's band—sorrowfully told the maestro she was leaving. She explained that she felt it was high time she graduated to the solo spotlight.

It isn't easy to find a songstress in the hinterlands, especially when you never stay in any town for more than a few days. But while Kemp's band was doing a split week date in a tiny Pennsylvania town, he auditioned a virtual amateur named Janet Lafferty. She was pretty and she showed promise, so with the help of Louis Busch, the pianist in the orchestra, Nan helped her successor "break in."

Bring down the curtain here. Let a few seasons elapse, and look again at these same characters. A tragic accident has cost Kemp his life. His young widow has married and then parted from Victor Mature. Things haven't gone too well for Nan Wynn, the former Kemp vocalist, and she is acting as vocal "ghost" to Rita Hayworth in "My Gal Sal."

Then let another season or two go by, and come to the present. Nan has hit her stride in Hollywood. No longer being heard but not seen, she's been tagged for the feminine lead in Columbia's forthcoming musical film, "Is Everybody Happy?"

There's only one other young star on the same lot competing with her for musical picture honors, Nan knows. This star is already a box office name. But Nan and Columbia's other singing star aren't feuding or even pouting. They are good friends.

Because Miss Wynn's rhythm rival on the home lot is Janet Blair, who used to be Janet Lafferty and who recently became Mrs. Louis Busch.

Then there is the gal who was mayhem at a microphone. She jumped and bounced and shook, and whether you liked or disliked her style of singing spiced with gymnastics, you had to admire her breakneck energy.

She was introduced as Betty Hutton, and you could tell by the way she hesitated when she was introduced that the name was new to her; not really her own. Vincent Lopez had discovered her in Detroit and had brought her to New York with his band at a salary regarded by the trade as peanuts.

It's nice to know that Vincent and Betty are still friends.

They were out together in friendly fashion a couple of weeks ago when Betty came to town on a visit.

There sat Lopez, who for a quarter of a century has been one of the top names in modern music. He sat just smiling, accepting the fact that the mob around his table clamoring for autographs wasn't interested in him at all—but in the yellow-haired gal who less than a half dozen years ago thought her wildest dreams had come true when Lopez offered her $75 a week to sing with his band.

RUNS RESUMED

Trains Operate Again After Pennsy Station Fire.

PHILADELPHIA —(INS)— Train service was restored to normal today after a $250,000 fire swept the Pennsylvania railroad's Broad street station yesterday. At least 100 persons suffered minor injuries in the fire but only three needed hospital treatment.

The blaze, started in the station's engine room and spread rapidly through underground storage and baggage rooms. Air-compressor tanks from which train brakes are filled exploded as the fire gained headway. The roar of the exploding tanks was heard for several miles.

A preliminary investigation showed "no signs of sabotage" police reported. It was the second major disaster of the Pennsylvania railroad in a week in this area as the Pennsylvania's crack Congressional limited was wrecked in northeast Philadelphia on Labor day, with a loss of eighty lives.

Joe Mayer Retains County Golf Title by Four Strokes

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Dear Boss: Sorry I won't be able to get to work this morning. I'm all tuckered out from that 36 holes of golf in the Richland county tournament at Westbrook yesterday. Every time I move I find a new ache, a new pain.

My arches are broken down, and my back, I'm convinced, is busted. And what is a charley horse like? I think I've got a couple of those around in places.

You haven't got a spare wheel chair handy, have you?

You know it's considered 10 miles around that 36-hole jaunt, counting course yardage, plus distance from greens to tees. And the way I make it, walking hither, thither and yon over the meadows, it could easily be 20 miles.

I told the boys that 36 holes would ruin me, that nine was more my speed, but they wouldn't listen, and I didn't have sense enough to believe it myself. So now I'm a casualty of the golfing wars, and I do mean war.

Now I can't even get out of bed. Old feather tick's got me. Ha, what's tickin' chicken? Not good? Okay, let it lay, with the rest of the eggs. It's just the way I feel today.

They fixed our foursome up fine in the pairings yesterday. A gallery of up to 200 fans was on our fairway most of the time. But they weren't watching us. They were following Joe Mayer as the defending champion took Westbrook apart with a 76-73—149 to keep his title. I had darn near that many for the first 18.

Well, not quite that bad, and I didn't finish last. Just in a tie for next to last. Yeah, Joe Mayer beat me for the championship, me and 76 other guys. We just weren't 76 guys named Joe, that was the trouble.

Funny thing. Nobody asked me what my score was. They were nice that way. But at least a couple of hundred asked me: "Did you finish the 36 holes?" And were astonished at the affumative reply

Throughout the drag end of the grind, guys on nearby fairways kept yelling: "Where are your crutches, Rex? Hold out a little longer, they've just called the ambulance." And things like that

And don't think I wouldn't have climbed into that ambulance.

* * *

P. S. Forget about my not coming to work. My manager says I gotta. She couldn't lift me out of bed, so she broke down the slats and rolled me out. Ain't wimmen wonderful?

Iowa Pre-Flight Lifts Grid Lid

NEW YORK —(AP)— The Iowa Pre-Flight eleven, glamor team of early 1942, and Michigan, expected to replace the Seahawks in that role this fall, open their campaigns this week-end.

Michigan, its own great collection of manpower increased by navy contributions from Wisconsin and Minnesota tangles with Camp Grant, 23-0 victors over Illinois, Saturday Iowa's Seahawks oppose the Illini.

On the same day Duke, which got plenty of navy help from Wake Forest, Auburn, Georgia, Tennessee and Mississippi State, tangles with the Camp Lejeune Marines.

Yale had to go all-out to defeat Muhlenberg, 13-6, after Wayne Johnson, one of Harvard's better backs in 1942 but now an Eli by grace of the naval training program suffered a severe injury on his first play. Rochester nipped Baldwin-Wallace 14-6; Swarthmore blanked Ursinus 12-0 and Presbyterian trounced Fort Jackson, 41-0.

Other games to be played this week-end are Bucknell at Cornell, Villanova at Muhlenberg, Rochester at Yale, Purdue at Great Lakes, Marquette at Wisconsin and the Lubbock Army Air Base at Texas Tech. Presbyterian's high scoring outfit tangles with Georgia on Friday.

LEAGUE MEETS

Women bowlers of the Tuesday Matinee league will meet tomorrow at 3:15 p. m. at Colony alleys to organize for the coming season.

Coach Kiki Cuyler of the Cubs keeps his streamlined figure by pitching batting practice.

Indians Cling to Second

Reynolds' Fine Hurling Turns Back Tigers.

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—Cleveland's Indians still hang tenaciously to their thin second place margin today, all because young Allie Reynolds didn't notice he was losing a ball game.

Reynolds, the Rookie, and Tommy Bridges, the Detroit Tiger veteran, locked in a pitching duel at Detroit yesterday, where the tribesmen chalked up a 2-1 triumph, ending the series at give games to one.

Yielding only two hits apiece for six innings, the two pitchers finally allowed one run each, both teams tallying in the seventh. The Indians then waited until the ninth to bring in the winning run.

The Tigers started an attack in the eighth, leading off with a double and adding a pair of singles with none out, but the Reynolds elbow started pumping speedballs down the line and prevented a run.

Detroit threatened again in the last of the ninth, after Cleveland broke the tie with a run in the first half of the inning. Reynolds once more failed to notice he was in a spot to let his ninth victory slip away, and ended the game.

The Redskins were able to collect only four hits off Bridges, one of them a three-base hit by Mickey Rocco that set up the winning run. Manager Lou Boudreau's long fly sent the first sacker home in the ninth.

Hank Edwards, who collected two of the tribe's four hits, scored the Indian run in the seventh, after getting on base by beating out a slow roller for a single. He advanced on Rocco's sacrifice and went to third on shortstop Joe Hoover's error on Kay Mack's hard grounder.

* * *

Jeff Heath came off the disciplinary bench as a pinch hitter and drove the run in with a forceout grounder to Rudy York.

The Detroit tally was fashioned on a walk to Pinky Higgins, a single by Ned Harris and Boudreau's error.

AFTER SECOND

CINCINNATI—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds can't see how the Brooklyn Dodgers can beat them out of second place money in the National league—although the bums hold a full game edge on that spot today.

Here's the way the Reds' board of strategy has it figured:

Beginning today the Reds have a four-day rest period in which to put the pitching staff in good shape. The next game is Friday night at Pittsburgh.

The Reds have 17 more games to play but 14 are at home while the Brooklyns have 20 more games, all on the road.

In yesterday's doubleheader, the Reds and Pirates whitewashed each other. The Reds took the opener 1-0 behind one-hit pitching by Elmer Riddle, but dropped the nightcap 7-0.

Using a variety of pitches, Riddle retired the first 22 men to face him hanging up his 19th triumph of the season

With one down in the eighth, Bob Elliott, Pirate third sacker, lined one to the scoreboard Only one other Pirate got on base safely With one out in the ninth, Riddle walked pinch hitter Tommy O'Brien but he was promptly doubled off first when Max Marshall made a running catch of Johnny Barrett's low, short fly.

The Reds got 10 hits off Rip Sewell, the "bloop-a-doop" pitcher who has won 20 games. With two out in the fourth, Bert Haas, making his last appearance as a Redleg before leaving for the army, got a walk. Singles by Steve Mesner and Eddie Miller scored him.

Xavier Rescigno presided on the mound for the Pirates during the nightcap and allowed four hits. Working on four Cincinnati pitchers, the Pirates scored in the second inning, again in the fourth, four in the sixth, which included Jim Russell's homerun with two mates aboard, and one more in the eighth.

Dayton Shooter Wins Rifle Meet

MT. GILEAD — (AP) — Andy Yearsley of Dayton, veteran of both state and international competitions, won the state rifle championship at the Ohio Rifle and Pistol association range here yesterday. His score was 1580 out of a possible 1600.

Yearsley succeeds Eugene Beecher of Cleveland, who placed fourth this year in the 17th annual meet.

The inter-league team match was won by the Central Ohio Rifle league, with 6299 out of a possible 6300. The Cleveland Civilian Marksman association was second with 6291 and the Western Ohio Rifle league third with 6284.

Members of the championship Central Ohio team were Harold Meiser and Herman Tratchel, both of Marietta, Fred Eakins of Columbus, and Mrs. Anna Barker of Chillicothe.

Riddle Hurls One-Hitter

Double In Eighth Inning Spoils Perfect Game.

By TED MEIERS
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

It isn't often a one-hitter is pitched in the major leagues after Labor Day, but Elmer Riddle of the Cincinnati Reds accomplished the feat against the Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday.

Pitted against the 20-game winner, Rip Sewell, in the first game of a doubleheader, Riddle retired the first 22 men to face him. Then, with one out in the eighth, Bob Elliott doubled for the Pirates' lone bingle.

Riddle went on to gain his 19th victory of the year with a 1-0 shutout. Only one other Pittsburgh batter got on base. Pinch Hitter Tommy O'Brien walked with one out in the ninth, but was erased in a double play.

* * *

Cincinnati's one run in the fourth when Bert Haas walked and crossed home plate on singles by Steve Mesner and Eddie Miller.

Pittsburgh gained a split by taking the nightcap, 7-0, behind Xavier Rescigno's four-hit twirling, coupled with Jim Russell's three-run homer in the sixth.

Ace Adams, the "work horse" of the majors, came nearest to Riddle's performance.

Used exclusively in relief, he started his first game and beat the Boston Braves 7-2, with a neat three-hitter. In the opener Southpaw Cliff Melton blanked the Braves, 3-0, by scattering seven hits.

The New York Yankees swept a five-game series from the Boston Red Sox 1-0 and 9-6. Ernie Bonham outpitched Joe Dobson in the opener, yielding four hits to Dobson's six. In addition Bonham won his own game, singling Joe Gordon home in the eighth inning. Gordon had doubled and stolen third.

* * *

The St. Louis Browns likewise got good pitching from Bob Muncrief and Denny Galehouse and swept a doubleheader from the Chicago White Sox 2-0 and 6-2.

Washington moved within two percentage points of the second place Cleveland Indians by beating the Philadelphia Athletics 4-3 and 9-5.

Washington moved within two percentage points of the second place Cleveland Indians by beating the Philadelphia Athletics 4-3 and 9-5.

Tommy Bridges hurled a four-hitter for Detroit against Cleveland, but lost 2-1 when Mike Rocco tripled and scored on Lou Boudreau's fly. The Tigers touched Allie Reynolds for seven hits, but had two men thrown out at the plate by Roy Cullenbine.

Brooklyn won its 18th game in 21 starts by beating the Phillies 8-4 through a six-run uprising in the seventh.

The St Louis-Chicago doubleheader was postponed.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Gil Bouley, a 230-pound tackle at Boston college last year, pared his weight down to 218 while training to become an army physical training instructor at Atlantic City, N. J.—then Gil decided he'd like to be a flier in spite of the 200-pound limit, and the cadet selection board gave him two weeks to get rid of the extra poundage. . . . So mid-summer afternoons, Bouley swathed himself in wool and galloped along the boardwalk. . . . Most of the bathers on the beach paid little attention, but one stopped Gil and asked: "Who are you fighting? . . . "The cadet board," replied Bouley, moved off at double time.

And then did we get to go to our barracks to rest? We did not. We went to the mess hall to scrub for two hours. . . . Wonder why I ever thought playing a doubleheader at second base was hard work?"

Athletic Supplies Win At Bucyrus

Mansfield Athletic Supplies closed their baseball season yesterday with a 13-5 victory over Bucyrus Moose at Bucyrus.

Lamb led the attack with five hits in six trips to the platter, including a double, while "Peanuts" Musille clouted a single, double and home run in five trips.

With the score tied at 3-3, Athletics sewed up the ball game with six runs in the fifth frame.

Grid Scout Has Worries

How To Get To Games Presents Problem.

By SAM FOGG
(INS Sports Writer)

The thinning thatches of hair worn by most of Ohio's high school football coaches seem destined to become even thinner this season in direct ratio to the difficulties they'll encounter in scouting their opponents this fall.

In a season already made uncertain by jumbled schedules and the loss of returning lettermen to the armed services, scouting systems in a goodly number of Ohio high schools face drastic curtailment, school athletic officials report.

Shortages of both gasoline and coaching aides will make the intensive scouting practiced in the past by the high schools either an impossible or at least a decidedly uncomfortable task. The assistant coaches who formerly undertook the journeying and the espionage no longer are available in numerous schools. The coach who is serving by himself will have exceeding few opportunities to watch his future opponents in action.

The scout who does travel this season for any great distance will have to be of a hardy breed. He'll travel either by bus or train which these days is an unnerving and frantic sort of experience. On scouting assignments to night games in towns not on the main travelled bus routes, he'll face the prospect of a drab sort of early morning vigil in the bus waiting room or an overnight stay away from home.

There will be one measure of compensation nonetheless. Those squirrel cage, razzle-dazzling triple reverse trick strategems which every coach dreams up with foolish fondness in his weaker moments might possibly work this year if left unscouted and unscorned.

In exception to the lack of scouting plagueing most coaches, in Portage county, an instance of over-scouting is forcing two coaching brothers, Harry and Carl Gilcrest, to revise their entire catalog of plays.

Last spring while Harry was coach of the Aurora high school Class B eleven and Carl was head of the Kent Roosevelt Class A Rough Riders, they cheerfully exchanged their notebooks of plays and revealed their gridiron secrets whole-heartedly.

Today, Harry is coach at Ravenna high school, Kent's bitterest rival, and the brothers Gilcrest are hastily revamping their tactics for their meeting in October.

Principal Peter Welbe at Willard high school is coaching the Crimson Flash squad and is advertising for both a coach and a vacant house. The action was prompted by the resignation of Harry Duff, former Dennison college star, as head coach at the school when he was unable to find housing facilities in the city. In three months, the Flashes have hired and lost three coaches.

* * *

On the other hand, Mechanicsburg high school landed a coach by applying at a daily newspaper. Leon Boutwell, publisher of the Mechanicsburg Telegram, has taken the job as head coach. Boutwell, former team mate of Jim Thorpe on the Carlisle Indians, was given special permission to coach the squad by the Ohio High School Athletic association.

* * *

Latest casualties of the season include Wooster's loss of a star guard, William "Junior" Tarpley who answered an army call to weaken the prospects of the Generals, regarded as one of the stronger smaller Class A combines. Two team casualties are Dalton which abandoned football because of no coach, and Irondale in the Steubenville district, which did likewise because of no players.

The 1943 superstition of the Massillon Tigers is the final odd and end to be cleaned up before the season opens Friday. Junie Shaidnagle, Tiger Booster club president, requesting seats for the Detroit Lion-New York Giant pro exhibition contest at Akron asked that the Tiger players be given entirely different seats than they possessed last year while guests at an Akron Rubber Bowl game.

He explained that out of superstition, the Tigers want everything to be changed from last season including the 35-0 trimming given them by Canton McKinley.

Great Stretch Drive Edges Carl Wiseman

Champion Turns In Rounds of 76-73 In JAC Sponsored Joust.

JOE MAYER did it again. For the third time in the four years of the Richland county golf tournament, Mayer again led the field yesterday at Westbrook Country club, becoming the first golfer to take the title two times in a row.

Tied with Carl Wiseman at 76 blows for the morning round of 18 holes, Mayer kept the pace for the first nine in the afternoon, and turned on a sizzling brand of golf in the home stretch to win by four strokes.

He started out with a pair of birdies on the back nine, and was two under par most of the way down the stretch, winding up with a 76-73—149.

Wiseman played just as good golf in the afternoon as he did in the morning, but it wasn't good enough to catch the flying Mayer. Wiseman shot a 76-77—153 for second place.

And that was the ball game. There was no one else around to even threaten Joe's championship. Tied for third place, 10 strokes off the pace at 159, were Al Kushin and Joe Kasper.

In every respect, yesterday's tournament was the most successful in the history of the county joust. The entry list of 78 players set a new record, and was nearly double that of last year when the tournament was played late, and in a cold, driving rain.

Yesterday's weather was just about perfect for this time of year, although a strong wind may have hurt a few scores.

Sponsored by the Junior Association of Commerce, the tournament had fine organization throughout the various committees, and everything clicked in big time tournament style.

In addition to his championship trophy, Mayer was awarded a $25 war bond, while every player in the tournament drew some prize, and there were still a few left over.

The tournament also drew a good gallery in the afternoon, probably 200 fans following Mayer around the course at various stretches of the closing round.

Bee Gees Open Grid Season

Meet Ohio Wesleyan In Saturday Tilt.

BOWLING GREEN—(AP)—Bowling Green State university opens its grid campaign Saturday against Ohio Wesleyan, but the Falcon lineup still is a big question mark to Coach Bob Whittaker.

Practice started a month ago, but the first scrimmage was delayed until last week. The squad is composed of Navy V-12 members who have had brief and irregular workouts.

Whittaker's moans, however, aren't being taken too seriously. He has lost only three games in his two years here, and had five unbeaten teams in 11 years at Sandusky high school.

The tip-off on the possible Bee-Gee strength is that the 39 squad members have won 33 college letters in football. Thirty are marines, eight are sailors, and only one, Ron Waugh of Bowling Green, is a civilian.

Three of the squad — Wayne Bordner of Bowling Green, Art Mergenthal of Xavier, and Don Jacobs of North Central college in Illinois, were named to captain their teams this season.

Nine of the squad were at Bowling Green last year, five at Creighton university in Nebraska, four at Baldwin Wallace, two at Kent State, and one each at Hiram, Marietta, Mount Union, Otterbein and Xavier.

Hassinger Leads Muzzle Loaders

Cy Hassinger led the Mansfield Muzzle Loader rifle club shooters Saturday with a percentage of 61.8 in seven matches. C. Lantz had 60 per cent, and L. S. Barr 45.9.

Barr took first honors in the string measure match with a string of 1.87 inches for three shots. T. Nelson had 2.14 and E. Smith 2.52.

E. Light won the 50 yard rest match with a string of 1.83 inches, Lantz had 2.14 and J. Adams 2.94. Barr also took the 50-yard offhand match with a 4.68 string, Hassinger was second with 4.73, and E. Adams third with 5.34.

Redskins Drop 3 Exhibitions

CHICAGO—(AP)— The National football league pro champs of 1942, the Washington Redskins, have made three formal appearances this season, lost all three and are happy the games don't count in the standings. The first was to the College All-Stars, 27-7; the second to Green Bay in an exhibition a week ago, 23-21.

The third defeat came yesterday at the hands of the Chicago Bears before 56,000 fans at Baltimore, 21-14, in an exhibition tilt.

The New York Giants, a 42-28 victim of the Bears last week, took it out on the Detroit Lions yesterday at Akron, O., also by a 21-14 score.

The Brooklyn Dodgers plastered the Camp Lee (Va.) soldiers 28-6.

Saturday night the Green Bay boys won their second exhibition test by beating the Phil-Pitt Eagles, 28-10.

AMERICANS AND NAZIS FIGHT IN VOLCANO AREA

Former Rome Correspondent With Yank Troops In Salerno Fighting.

(Editor's Note: Reynolds Packard, who was manager of the Rome bureau of the United Press when the war broke out, accompanied the United States Fifth army on its invasion of Italy. His first dispatch on the road back to the scenes he last saw as a war internee follows.)

By REYNOLDS PACKARD
(UP Staff Correspondent)
(Representing Combined U. S. Press)

WITH AMERICAN ASSAULT FORCES SOUTH OF NAPLES, Sept. 12 — (Delayed) — United States troops who landed west of Salerno last Thursday have pushed forward over the mountains and today are battling German Panzer units within sight of Mount Vesuvius.

The American assault forces were locked in one of the toughest fights on the Italian mainland against German Panzer units within less than 15 miles of Vesuvius.

(Mount Vesuvius is eight miles southeast of Naples and about 15 miles north of Amalfi on the Gulf of Salerno, one of the principal landing points of the Allied expeditionary force.)

Troops who already have encountered strong tank opposition have threatened with artillery and rifle fire the Naples-Salerno railway and highway, which runs parallel through Pompei.

Much fighting has been done at elevations of 4,000 feet and more.

The invaders took a seaside town on "D-day." Because of the tactical surprise, there were only a few casualties in the landing.

The troops immediately advanced two ways—inland toward the Naples-Salerno highway and along the coast road known in ancient legend as the promenade of the sirens. They quickly occupied a town and continued onward through orange groves behind which the Germans were massed.

Accompanying a special headquarters mission headed by a lieutenant colonel, I saw at first hand the tough fighting going on throughout the sector.

There was no letup for a single minute. Artillery duels were booming on all sides. Enemy snipers were taking potshots all day. The Nazis used every lemon and pomegranate tree as natural camouflage for field telephones, machine gun nests, and supply depots.

Malaria as a potential danger is more prevalent among the Italian population this year than at any time in a decade, probably due to the wartime neglect in draining marshes. It is being combatted with tablets which substitute for quinine.

From the mountain heights I can see the saffron glow of Mount Vesuvius at night.

Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark's Fifth army found that Italians already had turned on the Germans when they stormed ashore to establish beachheads near Salerno Thursday.

All the units knew that the government of Marshal Pietro Badoglio had surrendered to the Allies but were warned to expect German opposition. They got it and had a rather rough time landing.

The Nazis had taken over Italian defenses, making prisoners of a number of their former cohorts in arms. Fights between the erstwhile Axis friends occurred in several sectors.

I arrived this morning with the members of a liaison mission from Clark's headquarters. Roads had been fixed through the sand with chicken-coop wire and burlap sacking. The beaches were filled with soldiers, many of them working waist deep in water to unload war equipment.

Soldiers dug slit trenches with anything they could find. Some scooped out holes in tomato patches with their helmets, ready to bed down there when night comes. The beaches were strewn with life preservers discarded by the troops as they leaped through the surf and started inland.

The Germans knew we were coming. As the convoy approached the Italian mainland last night about 11 p. m. German planes attacked. Five of them were believed downed by British Beaufighters.

Heavy flowerpot barrages kept the enemy planes from doing much as far as could be seen from my ship. The convoy, one of the biggest and most important ever assembled in the Mediterranean, plowed steadily on.

From a vantage point standing near General Clark I watched units disembark in the first wave at 3:30 a. m. of a starlit but moonless morning. The landings were made precarious by flares that lighted the sea for miles. Some were glowing chandelier flares from German planes.

DEMANDS PLACE AT PEACE TABLE

DeGaulle Says France Should Be Included In Post-War Conferences.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Gen. Charles DeGaulle, co-chairman of the French committee of National Liberation, today was quoted as demanding for France her "rightful place" at the peace table.

The general's new bid for Allied recognition of the French committee in dealing with a defeated enemy was contained in a speech made at Oran broadcast by the Algiers radio and recorded by U. S. government monitors.

In an obvious indirect protest against exclusion of the liberation committee from negotiations which led to the surrender of Italy, DeGaulle declared France would seek to "take part, in the rank due to her, in a progressive settling up of the conflict and the reconstruction of the world."

"If our country has decided to play to the full, despite all its misfortunes, its part in the concert of the great United Nations," he said, "it is not only because it feels itself worthy and capable of such a part but also because it has ascertained in the course of a long and strenuous history to what extent the existence of solidarity between nations of goodwill is essential.

"Between these nations, there exists interdependence, and it is on account of this that they must all carefully look after the vital interests and dignity of others."

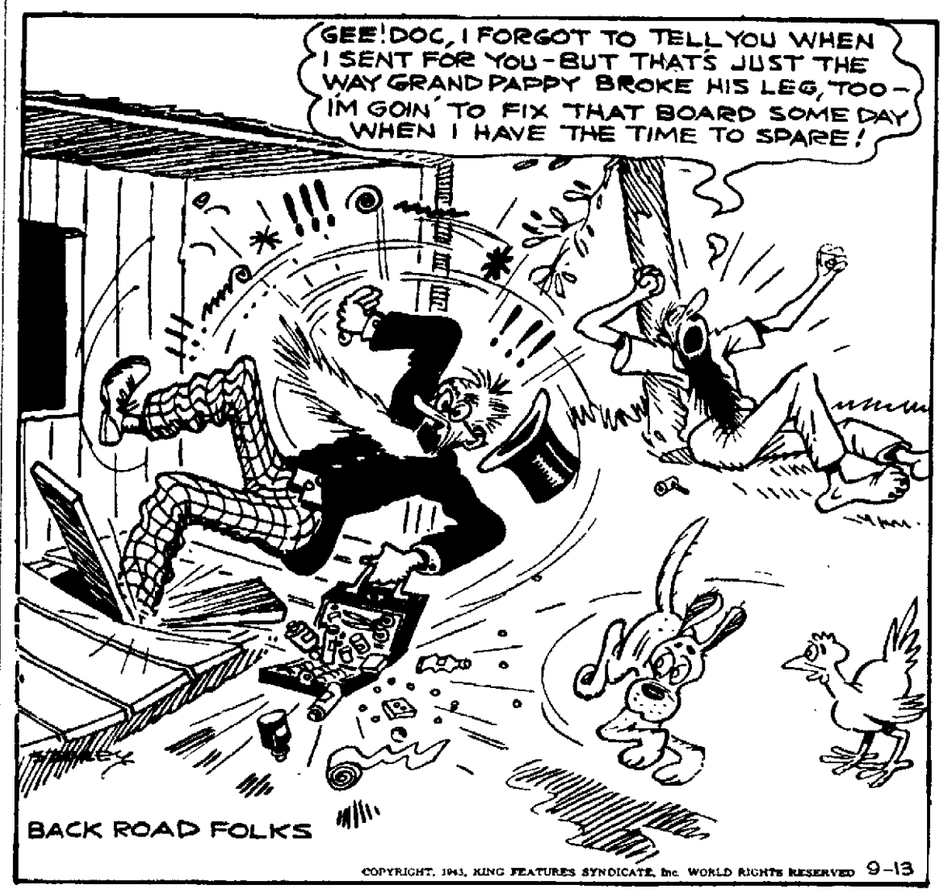

FIND 8 CASES

Eight of 37 persons examined last Friday in the county T. B. clinic at the city building showed positive tests, according to a report to Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner.

Five of the positive cases were among the 24 persons examined for the first time, while the other three were shown in 13 re-checks. Four of the eight positive cases were in Mansfield and one was in Shelby.

WORRYING OVER VATICAN FATE

Catholics In England Wonder What 'Protection' of Germany Means.

(By International News Service)

LONDON—Roman Catholics in England were deeply concerned today over the future of the Vatican, now under the announced "protection" of the Nazis.

Official British quarters were without confirmation of the various reports being circulated as to what is happening in Vatican City.

Communicaton with the British minister to the Vatican has long been most difficult and nothing has been heard from him for some time.

The German radios have broadcast veiled threats against Vatican diplomats.

The London Daily Mail declared that the attribution of these threats to the Vatican City radio is "particularly insolent . . . Since as far as is known this station is still under the Pope's control."

(Monitors of the United States Foreign Broadcast Intelligence service reported that the Vatican City radio was broadcasting on its usual schedule with only minor interruptions.)

According to broadcast quoting an Italian news agency, all entrances to Vatican City have been closed and armed guards are on duty continuously. St. Peter's Cathedral, which appears to have been closed for 48 hours for some unknown reason, was reopened for worship Sunday.

GOES TO CONVENTION

Desmond Walker, president of Local 17, United Rubber Workers of America, leaves for Toronto, Can., tomorrow to attend the international convention of the URWA. R. A. McCracken, also a delegate from Local 17, will leave Saturday to attend the parley.

MAP PLANS FOR MEMBER DRIVE

Preparatory to the opening of its annual fall membership drive the Y. W. C. A. will hold three classes for the instruction of the more than 50 workers to take part in the membership recruiting.

Miss Bertha Gregory, Y. W. C. A. secretary, said today instructions would be given the workers at 10 a. m. and 8 p. m. Tuesday, and 3 p. m. Wednesday. Workers may attend any one of the classes most convenient for them, she said.

LIFTS CURB ON USE OF ASPHALT

U. S. Removes Restrictions on Road, Street Materials; Aids Small Communities.

Restrictions upon the use of asphalt and road tars for street and highway construction and maintenance have been lifted by the federal petroleum coordinator, Highway Director H. G. Sours announced today.

County Engineer Howard Sword said today the relaxation of restrictions would be of greatest benefit to the village and townships that maintain no engineering departments. He explained that until this time small communities with only small scale patching jobs to be done have not felt it worthwhile to go through the procedure necessary to obtain the asphalt. Thus it will open the way to obtain needed street repairs.

Under the restriction, in effect since July, 1942, certificates were issued to city, county, and township officials enabling them to purchase asphalts and tars only when approved by the state highway department and the federal bureau of public roads.

In the future, officials will not have to go through this procedure but will be permitted to purchase any amount of the materials deemed necessary.

Restrictions applying in the past to the use of road oil have not been lifted, Director Sours said.

BACK BILL

Rubber Workers Ask Council To Pass OPA Ordinance.

A request that city council pass an ordinance proposed by the OPA to enforce price ceilings was sent city council today by Local 17, United Rubber Workers of America.

Desmond Walker, president, said rubber workers voted support of the ordinance at a meeting yesterday, declaring the ordinance would be a means for effective enforcement of price ceilings.

Under the ordinance proposed by the OPA, police could arrest violators of price ceilings and they would be tried in municipal court.

Council now has the ordinance under consideration.

GALION FARMER HURT IN FALL

C. E. Flowers Thrown From Horse, Fractures His Neck

GALION — Thrown from his horse as he was going after cows on his farm south of Galion Saturday evening, C. E. Flowers, a well known resident of this vicinity, is in Galion City hospital suffering from fractured vertebrae in his neck.

When he was first admitted to the hospital his arms and legs were partially paralyzed, but this condition was improved Sunday.

Flowers, who is about 50 years of age, is a foreman at the Galion Iron Works and Manufacturing company, and superintendent of the Sunday school at the United Brethren church.

The accident occurred Saturday evening as he was riding horseback on his farm to bring the cows in for evening milking. The horse stepped in a hole and fell, throwing the rider.

Flowers resides on the South street road about four miles south of Galion.

U-BOAT CHIEF WHO SANK ARK ROYAL SEIZED

American Plane Sinks His Ship Off Brazil, Takes Skipper Prisoner.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The navy announced today that the skipper of the German U-boat which sank the British aircraft carrier Ark Royal had been captured by a United States plane which bombed and sank the enemy undersea boat off the coast of Brail.

Kaptainleutenant Friedrich Guggenberger, who was decorated by Germany for the sinking of the British carrier in 1941, was one of seven survivors picked up after a duel between the navy plane and the U-boat in which bombs finally shattered the submarine.

Guggenberger, the navy said, "is now a prisoner of the United States."

The date of the action in which the submarine was sunk was not disclosed.

The navy statement said:

"Axis radio reports stated that Guggenberger was awarded the Knight's Cross of the Iron Cross by Germany in December, 1941, for sinking the Ark Royal and he was awarded the Oak Leaves to the Knight's Cross early this year."

Guggenberger was commander of one of two U-boats which the Germans credited for the Ark Royal sinking.

The navy plane, a Martin Marauder, was flying anti-submarine patrol off the Brazilian coast when its crew sighted the submarine. Only minutes later the U-boat sighted the plane. Anti-aircraft fire came from the after deck gun as the submarine turned and increased its speed.

The navy bomber immediately began its run for the release of bombs. Through heavy fire, the plane came in over its target and released its bombs from an altitude of only 50 feet.

"The drop completely straddled the sub, two of the bombs striking the U-boat's deck, the others landing close aboard on the port and starboard sides," the navy reported.

"The U-boat was blasted out of the water. Returning to the spot about a minute after the attack, however, the navy fliers saw spreading oil, various brown discolorations and 15 to 20 survivors in the water."

A life raft was dropped in the midst of the German survivors and the plane hovered over the scene until relieved two hours later by another plane which in turn stood by until the seven survivors were picked up by a United States naval seaplane tender. The navy did not explain what happened to the other survivors seen in the water at the time the life raft was dropped.

CHILDREN HURT

Burned When World War I Shell Explodes.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J. —(U.P.)— Two children were in serious condition at Englewood hospital today, indirect victims of World War No. 1.

They were playing with a one-pound French shell in a shed Saturday. Natale Schettino, 11, was holding the shell with the nose buried in the ground, while Pauline Antasio, also 11, was hitting it with a hammer. The shell exploded, burning both of them severely.

STOCK MARKET LIST IMPROVES FRACTIONALLY

Need For Steel In Conquered Zones Seen For Some Time To Come.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Fractionally improved prices ruled today's early stock market proceedings.

Gainers at a quiet opening included American Telephone, Western Union, General Motors, Sears Roebuck, Standard Oil (N.J.), Wilson & Co., Armour and Homestake Mining. United Aircraft and Great Northern registered minor recessions.

Trend students scanned the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that, whatever changes in armament specifications may result from the Italian collapse requirements will continue in other directions. Needs for steel and other raw materials in conquered zones, it was added, would be pressing for some time to come.

CHICAGO—(AP)— Grains opened about steady today and then moved fractionally higher. Trading was rather dull.

Wheat opened ⅛ lower to ⅛ higher, Sept. $1.46; oats were ⅛ lower to ¼ higher, Sept. 75 1-4; and rye was unchanged to ⅛ higher, Dec. $1.05¼.

THEATERS

Epic Film Script.

It took seven months to ready the script for Paramount's film, "So Proudly We Hail," starring Claudette Colbert, Paulette Goddard and Veronica Lake, and now showing at the Ohio. The really inspiring story was born in the mind of Mark Sandrich, Paramount producer-director, while he was touring the country as director with the Victory caravan. One of the stars with him was Miss Colbert. Allan Scott was along as a writer. Came news of the fall of Corregidor and Sandrich suddenly said, "Say, we've got to make a picture about those nurses on Bataan and Corregidor. What experiences they must have had!"

Ghost Town Story.

Lovely Ann Miller's tap dancing, Rochester's comedy, and the tunes played by Freddy Martin and his orchestra are the highlights of the musical production, "What's Buzzin' Cousin?" the Columbia picture which continues at the Madison. The story is laid in a ghost town in the west - a town in which Freddy and his boys find themselves stranded, but they don't mind a bit when Ann Miller and her girl friends are stranded in the same deserted place. They all get together to bring the dead town back to life. The co-feature is "Frontier Badmen."

'Thin Man' Film.

William Powell and Myrna Loy again assume their famous characterizations as Nick and Nora Charles, with Nick, jr., and Asta rounding out the now famous "Thin Man" family in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Shadow of the Thin Man," coming tomorrow to the Ritz. Mixing the hilarious domestic life of Nick and Nora with another fascinating murder case, the latest "Thin Man" story gives Detective Charles a difficult problem to solve, with no less than three corpses to deal with. Nora, as usual, tries to be the helpful little woman and, as usual, only adds to his sleuthing problems. "A Stranger In Town," with Frank Morgan, Jean Rogers and Richard Carlson is the co-attraction.

Laughton-O'Hara Film.

"This Land Is Mine" with Charles Laughton and Maureen O'Hara is the feature attraction at the Park theater. Also on the same bill is "Two Senoritas From Chicago," featuring Joan Davis and Jinx Falkenburg.

BEGIN AIRPORT APPRAISAL JOB

Realtors Survey Site, Start Preliminaries To Buy 900-Acre Tract.

Three Mansfield realtors who were named last week to appraise the proposed airport site for the city started on the project this morning, going to the airport with City Engineer W. C. Statler who was to map the boundaries for them.

Actual amount of land the city will need for the airport expansion is 900 acres, Mayor W. J. Locke said. The land is in 19 parcels. Because only a part of some farms in the area will be needed by the city, it was necessary for the city engineers to outline the area for the appraisers, the mayor said.

Employed for $1,000 to do the appraisal were W. C. Mansfield, M. A. Shaull, and Edwin Schmidt. The men will submit their appraisal figures to the mayor, Statler and Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff who were authorized by council to negotiate with the property owners.

Who Pays

For ADVERTISING
NOT the Buyer of Advertised Goods—NOT the merchant who sells the goods, and uses advertising space in the newspaper.
The Truth Is
That advertising is self-liquidating, nobody pays for good advertising—unless of course—it be the non-advertising merchant, who pays and pays, whose overhead goes up and up, and his sales volume goes down and down — he and the non-ad-reading customer, who buys blind, fails to read the ads, and in consequence, gets stuck with inferior non-advertised goods, at higher prices than he need pay.

highways toward Salerno were heavily attacked all day yesterday by Allied dive-bombers and strafers which raked convoys ranging up to 200 vehicles streaming northward toward the fight.

The importance the Nazi command attached to preventing a further enlargement of Gen. Clark's foothold immediately south of Naples also was shown by the continued presence over the battle area of large numbers of enemy bombers and fighters, both day and night.

Enemy broadcasts, too, said the defending forces were well entrenched on higher ground and conceded that the fighting was grim.

German broadcasts heard here said Mussolini had been rescued by German parachutists but where and from whom and for what purpose remained obscure.

An air communique said Allied aircraft continued night and day attacks on enemy concentrations streaming north out of the southern sections of Italy, presumably headed for the main battlefield in the Salerno - Naples district. At Salerno, fighters also intercepted enemy aircraft and shot down four, the announcement said. Four more were knocked down elsewhere. Two Allied planes are missing.

Heavy bombers again attacked the German - occupied airfield at Frosinone, southeast of Rome.

Roads and enemy transports were attacked at Corleto, Auletta and Sarti areas, and at Castelnuovo, northeast of Battipaglia.

Allied aircraft returned again yesterday to the Italian island of Rhodes, in the Dodecanese group off Turkey, a Middle East air communique said. American Liberators attacked airdromes at Maritza and Calato, both hit on the previous day by other bombers. Runways were reported damaged and at least six grounded aircraft set afire.

The South African air force also was credited by the Cairo announcement with setting an enemy cargo vessel afire at Gavdos island south of Crete Saturday.

Headquarters announced yesterday a British column had slashed 43 miles across the Italian heel from Taranto and taken the strategic Adriatic port of Brindisi.

Lt. Gen. Clark's Fifth army of U. S. and British troops was said to have slashed further inland and officers said the Naples-Salerno bridgehead was now 'firmly established."

Relman Morin, Associated Press war sorrespondent with U. S. assault forces, reported in a dispatch last night that the Americans had rolled back the Germans Saturday along the whole front "south and west of the Gulf of Salerno" and nearly doubled their beachhead in depth within 24 hours.

Morin said British elements of the army commanded by General Clark stormed into Battiaglia, important airport center a dozen miles southeast of captured Salerno, late Friday and that the city had changed hands several times since then.

Bryansk Threatened By Red Artillery

LONDON —(AP)— Bryansk big German base and key to the Nazi defense position on the central front, was menaced by Russian heavy artillery today as Red army troops drove to within 12 miles of the city from the east.

A Soviet communique, broadcast from Moscow, disclosed that Russian troops were at Belye Berega after a four - mile drive which resulted in the capture of 40 villages in bitter fighting.

Elsewhere the Russians were meeting with success in their campaign to push the Nazis to the Dnieper or beyond before winter, gaining up to 18½ miles and wresting 240 towns from German control in heavy fighting which resulted in the death of 8,700 German troops, the Soviet war bulletin said.

The stab at Bryansk threatened to unsettle the entire northern end of the 600-mile active Russian front. Other Red army columns cut the Bryansk-Vyazma railroad at Bitosh, 40 miles north of Bryansk, leaving only the railroads through Roslavl and Gomel as possible avenues of escape for the Nazis.

Italians Battle Germans at Turin

LONDON —(INS)— German and Italian troops today were reported locked in a bitter battle for possession of the northern industrial city of Turin.

(U. S. government monitors quoted the broadcast as reporting that Italian civilians had joined the battle for Turin and as saying "anti-German sentiment was sweeping Italy.")

The Swiss radio earlier said that troops under Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, one-time "desert fox" of Africa, now control all of northern Italy as far south as Bologna.

The Italo-Swiss border town of Como was occupied by the German army during the night, said the broadcast.

Allied Air Force Battering Germans

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA —(INS)— The Allied air force was revealed today to have fought an unrelenting sky battle yesterday designed to cripple the movement of German ground forces.

At the same time Allied airmen mauled every attempt of the German air force to get a crack at our ground forces and sea traffic.

In the area of the Salerno beachhead, the Luftwaffe seemed to be licking its wound. Between 90 and 100 Nazi fighters were active in this area yesterday and four of them were shot down in dogfights.

Meanwhile American fighters and bombers, operating round the clock, ripped into German motor transports and pounded highway and railroad junctions and airfields in the wide Naples arc in a campaign to isolate all approaches to that battleground.

Between 50 and 60 German trucks were believed to have been destroyed during the day.

Pacific War Veteran Fights In Italy

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NORTH AFRICA—(AP)—The first vessel of the Allied fleet that went into the Italian naval base at Taranto was an American cruiser that bears six Japanese flags painted on her bridge, it was reported today.

The report was brought back by an American representative of a broadcaster's pool who went with the fleet that took over Taranto on Sept. 9.

Taranto was said to have been a dead city when the Allied convoys unloaded Allied forces. The only action was the firing of three anti-aircraft shells at a German plane.

Pro-German French Leave Vichy, Report

MADRID —(AP)— Reports reaching here today from the French border said that many of the Vichy government's pro-German employes were quietly vanishing under fear of assassination and that German domination was nearing an end.

Hundreds departed in recent days, the reports said, with none leaving forwarding addresses.

Others who did not leave soon enough after receiving threatening letters were sent to hospitals or cemeteries, the reports said.

French newspapers reaching Spain told of "terrorism" in France.

FACES CHARGE IN GUN DEATH

Ohioan Accused of Fatal Shooting of Brother-In-Law.

PORTSMOUTH —(U.P.)— Scioto county Sheriff Earl Brandel said today that manslaughter charges will be filed against Daniel Hiles, 20, timber worker charged with fatally shooting his brother-in-law, Walter Blanton, 26, also a timberman.

Hiles admitted he shot Blanton with a shotgun yesterday after Blanton broke into the Hiles home and with an axe threatened to kill Hiles and his sister, Elizabeth, 15, who married Blanton three months ago, Brandel said. The girls was Blanton's third wife.

Brandel said Hiles charged that Blanton had been abusing his sister and that Blanton was intoxicated when he came to the house yesterday.

ADMITS SURPRISE

FDR's Son Landed on Kiska, Found Japs Had Fled.

SAN DIEGO, Calif —(AP)— Lt Col James Roosevelt was surprised, too, when he landed with American forces on Kiska and discovered the Japanese had sneaked away.

"Of course I was glad that it was not necessary to sacrifice any American lives," the president's eldest son told newsmen "But when we landed we were in a mood to give them what was coming to them."

Loosen Asthma Mucus Sleep Fine

Say Thousands of Sufferers

Choking, gasping, wheezing, recurring attacks of Bronchial Asthma ruin your sleep and rob your blood of vitally important oxygen because you can't get air in and out of your lungs properly. But now it is no longer necessary to suffer from these terrible attacks without the benefit you may receive from a physician's prescription called Mendaco. Within a very short time after the first dose, Mendaco ingredients start circulating thru the blood, thus reaching the smallest as well as the largest Bronchial tubes where they usually quickly help liquefy, loosen and remove thick strangling mucus (phlegm), thereby promoting freer breathing and more restful sleep. In fact, Mendaco has proved so successful in helping thousands of sufferers from recurring spasms of Bronchial Asthma that it is sold under a guarantee of money back unless completely satisfactory. So get Mendaco from your druggist today for only 60c.

When Turin Felt Might Of Allied Bombers

This street in Turin will give you an idea of the heavy Allied blasting of Italian cities that caused Badoglio to surrender unconditionally. It was reduced to a shambles after big bombers had dropped their missiles on it last month. Turin is located close to the Po river in northern Italy and may come in for further bombings should the Nazis decide to make a stand at that point.

PROBE CRASH FATAL TO THREE

Officers Check on Accident Which Killed Soldier, Two Girls.

BRYAN—(INS)—Williams county authorities today investigated an auto-train crash which occurred at a crossing a half mile northeast of Bryan Sunday and proved fatal to the three occupants of the auto.

Pfc. Harmon Stevenson, 21, Antwerp, stationed at Camp Attebury, Ind.; and two girl companions, Irene Hand, 21, of Paulding, and Violet Wasnick, 22, Toledo, were killed instantly when the car driven by Stevenson was struck by a fast eastbound New York Central passenger train.

PURSE TRAVELS

Kenton Man Recovers Wallet and Money, Via Africa.

LIMA —(INS)— V. L. Chamberlain, of Kenton, today was in possession of his wallet containing $4.20 which he lost while working at the Lima tank depot—after the wallet made a round-trip to Africa.

Chamberlain lost the pocketbook in a tank he was preparing for shipment overseas. The wallet came back to the depot accompanied by a letter from Pvt. Roy Blair of the 476th ordnance evacuation company who was a member of the crew which uncrated the tank.

23 ARRESTED

Charged With Buying Stolen Dressed Chickens Below Ceilings.

NEWARK, N. J.—(U.P.)—Twenty-three persons were arrested in Delaware, New Jersey and New York yesterday on charges of purchasing stolen dressed chickens from 10 to 15 cents a pound below ceiling prices, Samuel K. McKee, FBI chief in this area, disclosed today.

The poultry was part of approximately $500,000,000 worth stolen and sold in the three states during the last 18 months, McKee said.

seven Italian warships reported to have put in previously at the Balearics before heading for an Allied port may have included others.

Still unaccounted for are more than half of the Italian submarine fleet which was believed to have numbered between 50 and 60, some of which were understood to have been operating in the Atlantic ocean.

Other units of the fleet, including some of the submarines, were believed to be at sea attempting to elude German bombers.

LONDON —(INS)— The Nazi-controlled Paris radio claimed today that 11 Allied ships, including five warships, were sunk off the Italian coast yesterday.

AXIS CHORTLES AT 'FREEING' OF MUSSOLINI

Calls 'Coup' One of Greatest of War; British Say Allies Never Held Ex-Duce.

ularly great and everywhere in the streets the event is the topic of conversations."

Twelve hours after his release by German parachute troops and Elite guards was announced in Berlin, broadcasts recorded by the Associated Press began a full-blast exploitation of the incident, hailing it as a master stroke and "an audacious venture."

A DNB broadcast said "competent circles in Berlin stated that other Fascist leaders were freed with Mussolini."

(The office of war information in Washington noted that while the Nazis were boasting about Mussolini's capture, "they hadn't seen fit to have him broadcast, and weren't even quoting him today.)

The Netherlands radio said Vittorio Mussolini, eldest son of the deposed duce, had arrived in Germany, but it did not indicate whether he was one of those whom the Germans claim to have freed.

What use the Germans intended to make of Mussolini after his 49 days of confinement away from his balcony at Plazzo Venezia remained to be seen, but it was likely that he might be restored as a puppet dictator in the Nazi-controlled territory in northern Italy.

Details of the reported rescue were still lacking, but a Berlin communique last night said that he had been freed by parachute troops, security service men, and armed members of the S. S.

The British foreign office stated it had no information on the whereabouts of Mussolini and at no time had he ever been in British-American hands.

Because of this, officials here discounted reports that he had been taken by German parachute troops in Sicily.

Some officials tended to discount the value of his reported release, arguing that if Mussolini did set up a puppet Fascist regime the Italian people, thoroughly sick of war and Fascism, would pay little attention to it.

The British Broadcasting corporation, in a radio news buletin to the Italian people, said that Mussolini had been released by the Germans and added that Premier Badoglio and King Vittorio Emanuele "are safe at an undisclosed place on Italian soil."

Mussolini's whereabouts have been more or less of a mystery since his sudden fall, but it is believed in London that he has been held a prisoner in the Pontine islands off the west coast of Sicily.

Reports from Allied headquarters in North Africa and from neutral quarters, meanwhile, tended to bear out German claims that most of northern Italy now is under Nazi control.

Except at Turin, however, where Italian troops aided by civilians still are fighting the Germans, the Nazis are encountering little open resistance in the north, the Swiss reports said. Passive resistance was reported widespread, nevertheless.

Rome itself was reported suffering from a severe food shortage and public transportation there was said to be virtually paralyzed.

Dispatches from Stockholm quoted Berlin advices as saying that Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, commander of German forces in northern Italy, was taking urgent steps to strengthen his defenses from the River Po to the Adriatic following a swift inspection tour.

The Swedish dispatches said trains were rolling into Italy without interruption bearing troops and supplies, and German officers from the Stalingrad front in Russia were reported being rushed southward.

Says Allies Missed Duce By 12 Hours

By REYNOLDS PACKARD
(UP Staff Correspondent)

WITH FIFTH ARMY, SOMEWHERE IN ITALY, Sept. 11—(Delayed)—An Allied task force that captured Ventotene island 50 miles off the Italian coast missed Benito Mussolini by only 12 hours, John Steinbeck, American author and correspondent, said today.

Steinbeck reported that natives who had seen Mussolini thought he was "completely nuts," and said he compared himself to Napoleon.

(The Berlin radio, in a special German communique, said Mussolini had been freed from Italian authorities by German paratroopers and SS units at an undisclosed place.)

Steinbeck, who accompanied the task force, said Mussolini at that time was held by Italian army officers and dreamed and talked of returning to power like Napoleon did from island exile.

Talks with natives, Steinbeck said, convinced him that Mussolini was held mainly at nearby Ponza island.

"I talked with a number of inhabitants of Ponza who were spending some days on Ventotene —they are always going back and forth," Steinbeck said.

STOCKHOLM —(U.P.)— Benito Mussolini has been taken to Adolf Hitler's retreat at Berchtesgaden, the newspaper Allehanda claimed today.

Jack Frost Pays First Visit To Richland Region.

Farm and garden produce apparently escaped serious damage in the Richland county area over the week-end in an early season "cold wave" that dropped the mercury below freezing Sunday in northeastern Ohio.

Although tender vegetables showed signs of being nipped by frost yesterday, there was no widespread damage like that in the Youngstown and Salem areas where tomatoes and corn were hit by the earliest frost on record in that part of the state.

Scattered showers and continued cool weather were forecast for tonight. The temperature climbed rapidly today from a low of 51 and stood at 71 at noon.

Restaurants, like housewives, are known by the "POINTS" they serve

RESTAURANT owners and housewives know that ration points are just as necessary ingredients in wartime menus as money. They know, too, that only strict accounting of these two items provides a popular bill of fare.

That's why the well-managed restaurant uses a National Food and Beverage Checking Machine in the kitchen. Here an item-by-item check is made of each serving on your waiter's tray . . . and you receive a guest check which shows in clear, unchangeable figures the amount charged for each item served. While these figures are being printed for your convenience and protection, this National sets up controlling facts and figures from which management can check all food and beverage sales.

This is only one of many mechanized systems built by National to provide protection for industry, business, government and the public. . . . An adequate supply of used Nationals is available for business needs and National Accounting-Bookkeeping Machines can be secured by essential business through priorities.

HELL AND HIGH WATER

CHAPTER XX

Hiram Sugg was missing for days. News of the charges against him was the talk of the countryside. Public opinion was divided. Many who knew him refused to believe the allegations. They argued that Sugg, a coming man, able and ambitious, would not risk ruining a promising future by lining up with a gang of notorious bad men. The only evidence against him was that of a man who had himself been accused of complicity in the same crime.

He rode into Atoka one morning, clinging to the horn of his saddle, his face white and his teeth set. A bullet had passed through muscles below the armpit, fired by somebody at close range. He had crawled to a Choctaw nesters cabin. The man had summoned Doctor Taylor. As soon as he was able to travel he had ridden to town on one of the settler's horses.

He said that about an hour after he left the JAB he had been held up by Bob Lee and shot. Before he fell from his horse he had managed to hit his assailant on the head with the butt of a quirt. He must have become unconscious at once, for when he came to he was lying on the ground and his horse was gone. Apparently Lee had thought he was dead and after robbing him had taken his horse.

Sugg looked haggard and worn, but his undisturbed eyes met candidly those who talked with him. It was hard to doubt his word.

None of the group listening to him could tell that back of his confidence was a soul-shaken with fear. He was like one who walked over mined ground that might at any moment explode under his feet. He had to keep smiling.

Wounded though he was, Sugg rented a buckboard at Atoka and drove to the JAB. He was far from certain of his reception.

Willie May was walking to the corral when he drove up and descended from the rig. The girl looked at the bandage round his body, her eyes wide with concern.

"You've been hurt," she cried.

"Compliments of an outlaw," he said lightly.

"What outlaw?" she asked.

"Bob Lee."

His eyes were sunken and weary, his face drawn and lined. But the man's wan smile still had a touch of gayety.

"Bob Lee," she repeated. "I don't understand. Bob says—"

"I know what he says—what a man has to say when he is crowded to the wall. But nobody believes him, except those who want to see me dragged down. Since that sheriff posted the reward for him he has been fighting desperately to get out of this jam. He keeps pointing to me to draw attention away from himself. The other day he followed me from the ranch and tried to murder me."

She stared in amazement. It was as difficult for her to believe Bob a criminal as to admit it of the man she loved.

"Are you badly hurt?" she parried. "Whoever shot you, it couldn't have been Bob."

"Shot in the side. He left me for dead. But before I went down I got home one hard crack at his head with my quirt. He was closer to me than you are when he fired. I wasn't expecting it."

An icy wave swept through the girl. She had been furiously angry at Bob and still was, but there was in her some strong instinct that clung to him in spite of her resentment. Now she had to believe him a murderer or admit that Hiram was a liar, a hypocrite and a bandit. It had to be one way or the other.

"I crawled to a cabin and lay there for days. When I could travel I got a horse and stuck it out at Atoka. Then I drove here." She saw for a moment on his face the warm winning smile that had always stirred her. "I had to come to see you."

She flung behind her the doubts that had besieged her heart. Her warm lips offered themselves to his. Hungrily he kissed her. Just now, when all the future he had worked for might as soon be blotted out, this girl's faith and love meant life to him.

"I knew you would believe in me," he said softly.

"I have to believe in you, my love," she said.

There was wistfulness in her voice, more than a touch of unhappiness.

* * *

Bob Lee came out of the bunk house carrying a bridle and walked toward them. He did not notice Sugg and Miss Broderick until he was close. Then he stopped.

The steady eyes of the men drilled each other. There was a moment of silence.

Bob spoke first. "You have yore nerve, Sugg," he said quietly.

Sugg ignored that. "You thought you left me for dead. You should shoot straighter, Lee."

Bob did not understand this, but he knew the leader of the outlaws packed some new deviltry. It would be meant for Willie May's benefit.

"Go on with it, Sugg," Bob challenged. "When did I leave you for dead?"

Sugg shook his head. "No use pretending, Lee. I don't need to tell you when and where."

"I get it," Bob replied. "One of us is a liar and an outlaw. You want Miss Broderick to think it's I. Listen, Sugg. You're coming to the end of yore last crooked mile. Every step you take brings you nearer to it."

"When you shot me the other day while we were talking you thought I had reached the end of the trail. I fooled you, Lee. I'm still alive. I'll send you to the gallows."

"The last time I saw you was in Sunk Bayou. You and Hickory were trying to kill me, and would have done it if Carson and Hightower had not appeared."

Neither of the men had raised their voices while they talked, though there had been in them a deadly and concerted hatred. Neither had relaxed the hard close rigor of their eyes. They were speaking one to the other exclusively.

But no word of it, no shade of inflection, escaped Willie May's attention. Again she felt that pain of dreadful doubt. She wanted to believe Sugg. She wanted so much to be sure of him. But a still small voice in her kept saying that Bob Lee was no liar. She remembered too that there had been moments, even before this robbery, when her eyes had seen inside Sugg a blind obtuseness to moral.

"You're a jealous fool, Lee," Sugg flared contemptuously. "A cat may look at a king—or a queen, but it can only look. When it starts scratching they tie it in a sack and fling it in a river. You better fork a bronc and light out for Texas."

Willie May looked quickly at Bob. Lee gave no sign of wavering.

"I'm going to stay here 'till the Hickory outfit is rounded up," he answered in a low drawl.

"Were any of the Hickorys in this hold-up besides Ed? He seems to have been one of the robbers, unless you planted the stolen money on him before Carson arrived. Take my advice and burn the wind back to Lampasas, or wherever you came from."

Broderick and two of his men came into the yard through a gate off the north pasture. The boss rode up and dismounted.

"What are you doing here?" he demanded.

"I came to kill some rumors this kid has set going about me," he answered.

"I've made up my mind about you," Broderick retorted bluntly. "You were with the Hickorys on the hold-up from start to finish, you tried to kill Bob the other day."

"It's my word against his. I never lifted a hand to hurt him, but he shot me down after I left the ranch. Then he stole my horse and took it to Sunk Bayou. When Carson showed up he had to make a play, showing why he was there."

"I don't believe a word of it. Get off this ranch, Sugg. Don't ever show yourself here again, you blackhearted skunk."

"I wouldn't take that from any other man alive, Broderick," Sugg said in a low firm voice. "If you weren't the father of the girl I'm going to marry—"

"Not while I'm alive to prevent it," Broderick retorted.

"Father," protested Willie May. "I won't have you marry a two-facer like this."

"Suppose you let me decide who I'll marry," the girl said tartly.

"Maybe I will," Broderick replied. "I'm just telling this fellow—"

"You're prejudiced—have taken Bob's side and closed your mind. It that fair?"

"Bob is telling the truth."

"You don't know that. You think so. Hiram's story is reasonable."

Broderick choked down his indignation. He couldn't bully the girl. She might run off and marry Sugg.

"All right. Just wait; this thing will work itself out. If it turns out Sugg is innocent, you can do as you wish."

His daughter nodded. "It's a bargain."

Sugg did not like that. Bob was pleased.

WEEKLY DROP KEEPS 'CHUTE PACKERS BUSY

Maintaining Equipment For U. S. Paratroopers Is Big Job.

(By United Press)

WITH AMERICAN ARMY, NORTH AFRICA — "It takes us a week, then there's another drop and all our work has to be done over," said Lieut. John Anderson of Shelbyville, Ind.

Anderson is in charge of packing and maintaining the parachutes of a regiment of paratroops as well as the parachutes for their equipment and supplies.

In the big hangar, working on smooth, fiberboard tables, packers under the direction of Master Sgt. Hugh A. Tracy of Jamestown, Ala., were examining and packing some new camouflage 'chutes. Tracy was one of the original test platoon that formed the nucleus of the entire American parachute infantry. He has been in the army three and a half years.

Other men were working on the 24-foot reserve chutes each paratrooper wears, and the vari-colored 'chutes for equipment, ammunition, food and water.

Anderson also has to maintain the containers, including one special one his men constructed for dropping blood plasma. The 'chute, for that has a big Red Cross on it, as do others containing medical supplies.

Another job of Anderson's section is to maintain the men's jump suits. When this correspondent visited the sewing shop, several men were working on reinforcement of the pockets of jump suits. I remembered that the paratroops who fought in Tunisia last December and January had found their pockets needed reinforcing, too.

One of the sewing machine operators was Technician Fifth A. B. Walsh of Shreveport, La., who acquired his sewing machine technique as an upholsterer for General Motors.

As a sideline, Anderson works with the men who are continually trying new methods of dropping equipment. He showed a small cart with two rubbertired wheels, dropped the other day. The 'chute had tangled—a "malfunction" is the paratrooper's term—and the cart plummeted, hitting the ground on one wheel. Yet, only one wheel had been broken. "The Firestone ture didn't suffer a bit," Anderson added. "But the hub and the rim parted company."

Earlier a group had been packing equipment and demolition materials in heavy containers under the direction of Lieut. Harold H. Swingler of St. Louis, Mo. Swingler took time off to contest Sgt. Paul Nigra's defense of the Giants, Swingler being a Cards man.

Other demolition men weighing and packing equipment included Pvt. James J. Bettell of Plymouth, N. H., Pfc Bernard Fox of Houston, Tex., and Pvt. Lyle J. Borden of Stillwater, Minn.

ZOOT SUITERS IRK JUDGE

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. — (U P) — While psychiatrists were racking their brains as to why zoot-suiters acted the way they did, it occurred to Federal Judge Paul J. McCormick, at the instance of Investigator Howard G. Chaffey, that maybe it was merely because they were wearing zoot suits. He accordingly charged Jack Lamm, clothing store proprietor, with violation of the law that regulates the amount of cloth that can be used in making a suit.

BUILD BASES IN ALEUTIANS DESPITE FANTASTIC WEATHER

(By International News Service)

ADAK, Alaska—Officers and men of the U. S. Army and Navy have had to work harder than they ever worked before in their lives to make this important base ready for action.

In fact, the very job of living is hard work in the Aleutians, where the mud, bogs, snow and winds combine to turn the earth and atmosphere into a fantastic maze of weather.

But despite this handicap Americans in the army, the navy, and the navy's brand new work battalions, the Seabees, have constructed the docks, warehouses, huts, mess halls, telephone lines water mains, sea and air control towers, office buildings and the other facilities needed to fight the war.

Men have worked on the water in gales over 50 miles an hour, building docks and piers. They have dug ditches in water inches deep. They dammed and drained a river to find a base for one of five airfields in the north.

The work goes on 24 hours a day, seven days a week. It is 11 p. m. now, and outside the hut in which I am writing a crew with a crane is working full blast.

Chronologically the work sounds slow. Actually, the speed with which the army and navy erected bases on this island in five and one-half months was amazing. Five and a half months ago not a single human being lived on this island. The Aleuts used to, a century or so ago, but they were wiped out by diseases brought to the island by European traders and trappers. In five and a half months the army and navy bedded down. The island is almost comfortable now. It will be later.

Every man with a shovel, every man operating a bull-dozer, would rather be fighting Japs. It's a dull routine they go through here. And they've been through it on the other islands, too.

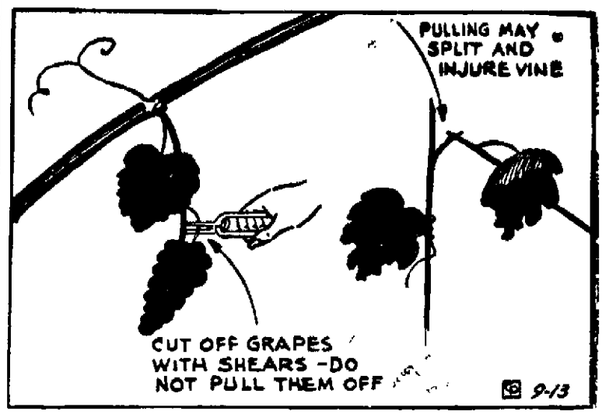

It's only a couple of hundred miles from here to Kiska.

There would be some thrill, some glamor in a fight after all this work. The men who returned would be able to tell of adventures, rather than saying "I dug ditches on Adak."

They realize, though, that this is a necessary prelude, that because of the nature of this theater of war, the armed forces have to build before they can fight.

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

How to Harvest Victory Garden Grapes.

By DEAN HALLIDAY

(Released by Central Press Ass'n.)

Victory gardeners who are preparing to harvest grapes for the first time must learn patience, for grapes should be allowed to become fully ripe on the vine before being gathered. In fact, the longer grapes hang, the sweeter the berries become.

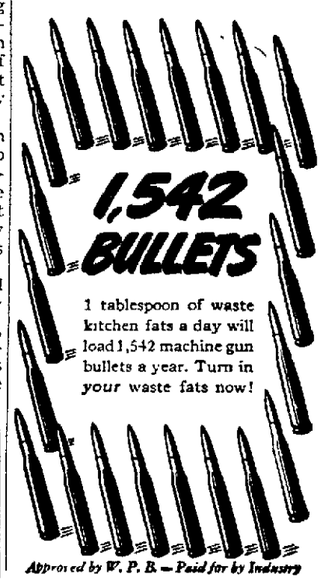

If inexperienced at growing grapes do not worry about leaving them on the vine until even the slowest maturing berries of the cluster are ripe, for both fruit and foliage will not be harmed by the light frosts of early autumn.

When "picking" grapes cut each cluster from the vine with sharp shears, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. If the cluster is pulled from the vine it may strip the bark off or it may break the rather brittle vine, as illustrated in the Garden-Graph.

Even after grapes have ripened they can be left hanging on the vines as long as there is no danger of freezing weather. Some varieties keep all the better for being allowed to remain on the vines until late in the season.

Black varieties of grapes will show color before they are ripe enough to eat, but at such stage are "just right" for jelly-making.

"BODIES" for BOMBERS

ON OCTOBER 25, 1940—more than a year before Pearl Harbor—U. S. Army Air Corps officials notified us of the urgent need for a vastly increased aircraft production program, and invited us to participate.

Already we were making Army trucks in great number, completing a huge tank arsenal, building field ranges and tent heaters, and making our first studies of anti-aircraft gun manufacture.

Here was another urgent job that had to be tackled at once.

Without waiting to learn what aircraft job would be assigned to us, we provided 600,000 sq. ft. of additional plant space and, from our own personnel, began to select engineering, metallurgical and manufacturing specialists for this new work.

It was just three months after our first meeting with Air Corps officials that we were officially notified our job was to build the complete nose and center fuselage sections for medium bombers including installation of complete mechanical and control systems.

We immediately sent forty of our technicians to a producing aircraft plant where these men did regular production work and observed, at first hand, the production methods then in use. Our long background in building automobiles and trucks, plus the experience these men gained working with an aircraft manufacturer, enabled us quickly to get under way with the necessary tools and equipment to turn out "bodies" for bombers by quantity production methods.

To help acquaint us in advance with the many kinds of material and operations involved, the Army Air Corps sent us a bomber nose section. Our engineers and master mechanics made intensive analyses of aircraft blueprints covering more than fourteen thousand structural parts.

The materials to be used included aluminum, steel, brass, bronze, plastics, plywood and fabrics.

Many of the metal parts presented entirely new working characteristics. They required elaborate heat treating processes for the extreme stresses demanded of them. They also presented new problems in the design and use of the dies required to shape them.

Our production and purchasing specialists determined which parts we could subcontract to other companies. As the work progressed, orders were given to 2,255 subcontractors in 309 towns, in 29 states.

Aluminum forgings would be needed in large numbers by us and other manufacturers participating in the expanded aircraft production program. Therefore, we were given the job of building an aluminum forge plant to take care of these requirements. We also prepared at our foundry to produce aluminum castings required for plane manufacture.

Thousands of men and women had to be trained for this new type of work. Women were employed in large numbers and carefully taught drilling, riveting, machining and assembling of aircraft parts. Automobile sheet metal workers, body builders and trimmers were shown how to apply their skill and experience to the production of bomber parts.

The big nose of the bomber houses the Bombardier, Pilot, Co-Pilot, Navigator and Radio Operator. Nearly all the mechanical and electrical controls are here, while the center section is the bomb carrying space.

If you could look within these sections as the work of assembly goes on, you would see a bewildering network of wires and tubing as well as the structural skeleton of the ship. Every one of these 1,963 separate wires and over 1,000 feet of tubes—to say nothing of all the control mechanisms—must operate faultlessly.

In the production of "bodies" for bombers—a new field to Chrysler Corporation—again is demonstrated how our experience in peacetime car and truck production now is being applied to the production of war equipment in quantity . . . and on time.

OHIO DRIVERS!

OHIO'S NEW LAW, enacted to promote safe driving, and to insure innocent traffic victims payment of loss or damage suffered, becomes effective September 20, 1943.

UNDER THE LAW, A DRIVER LOSES HIS RIGHT TO DRIVE FOR FIVE (5) YEARS IF HE FAILS OR IS UNABLE TO PAY A JUDGMENT OBTAINED AGAINST HIM AS A RESULT OF A TRAFFIC ACCIDENT.

The SUREST and CHEAPEST way to protect driving rights, which under the new law are endangered the moment a driver becomes involved in an automobile accident, is to IMMEDIATELY purchase—

BODILY INJURY AND PROPERTY DAMAGE LIABILITY INSURANCE

THE COST IS EXTREMELY LOW

The cost of this protection varies according to place of residence and type of gasoline rationing assigned. However, for around $12.00 to $17.00 (less than the present cost of repairing even one slight damage to an automobile) insurance can be obtained which will pay damage done and injuries inflicted while driving, and which will safeguard driving rights by proving the driver's ability to pay any judgments rendered against him.

All of the Insurance Offices listed below are familiar with the new law, and any one of them will gladly serve drivers in arranging the protection which is necessary under the law, and on convenient terms, if desired.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1943.

It is being stressed that English and Americans "speak the same language"—in a way, of course.

Awaited with interest is the Nazi explanation of how Germany became "disengaged" from the Italian situation.

German military authorities have urged soldiers to include some humor in their letters home—but this will probably be increasingly difficult.

Secretary Hull's Peace Views

WHATEVER difficulties may be encountered in applying principles of postwar procedure by the United Nations voiced in last night's talk by Secretary of State Cordell Hull, his ideas will be quite generally recognized as a plain statement of some of the things necessary to establishing foundations for lasting world peace—or at least for avoidance of such disastrous wars as that in which we are now engaged.

Outstanding, perhaps, in his proposals is that which requires co-operation of nations in "restraining aggressors and nations that seek to resort to force for the accomplishment of purposes of their own."

This can mean nothing else than maintenance of adequate "policing" to prevent such aggressive acts as were committed by Hitlerized Germany in bringing on the present war and is directly opposed to the principle of isolationism which prevented United States participation in such action following the first World war.

Almost equally essential would be Secretary Hull's proposal to submit political differences threatening the peace of the world "to agencies which would use the remedies of discussion, negotiation, conciliation and good offices" to adjust differences.

Adjudication of legal disputes by an international court of justice, "on the basis of principles of law," is also proposed, but the extent to which these measures would prove practicable in meeting situations that may arise when boundaries are being set up in Europe and elsewhere after the war cannot yet be determined.

In any event, while Secretary Hull's talk presents nothing that is entirely new, it contains some interesting material for discussion—particularly in view of his statement that consultations with other governments, as to postwar peace plans, are already in progress.

Viewing Season's Garden Results

THOSE who visited the Victory Garden Harvest Show at the Armory Saturday or Sunday could scarcely have failed to be impressed, not only by the success which attended many home gardening efforts during the past summer but also by the even greater potentialities in food production for family use.

Displays in various sections were excellent, and, aside from the element of competition, proved interesting to all who were attracted to the exhibit.

While some of those who cultivated a garden this season were familiar with that line of work, many others lacked the experience in purchase of seeds and plants which would have made better selection and apportionment possible and which would have extended use of favorite vegetables through a longer season.

Experience gained this year, however, should be made to pay dividends in the future productiveness of home gardens and in proper canning methods. Health gains among Victory gardeners are also to be taken into account when efforts and returns from home gardens are being considered.

We'll Miss Frank Beverstock

ANOTHER of Mansfield's familiar figures has passed with the death of Frank Beverstock, whose business associations and varied activities placed him among the best-known men in this community.

Product of a Richland county farm home, Frank's interests divided between country and city, but it was in the Mansfield environment that he spent most of his time during the past forty years.

His association with early stages of the motion picture business, as manager of a local theater, brought him many new acquaintanceships, but it was in his long-time capacity as secretary of the Richland County Automobile club that he came to know additional thousands of residents of this city and vicinity.

Strangely, although his personal activity was credited with large increase in auto club membership, and in the excellent service given by that organization, it was horses, rather than automobiles, that claimed Frank's greater interest.

It was natural, upon his retirement from secretaryship of the auto club a few months ago, that he should have retired to his farm for the little while that remained of life. He will be missed by many.

More Using Bank Deposit Boxes

MORE AND MORE safety deposit boxes are being rented. Whereas banks used to have renters for only 50 per cent of their available space, the figure is now between 75 and 80.

War Bonds and more money are the answers. People have more valuables which need security, and more money with which to provide it.

It is a good idea. Too much money has been lost because people put it away in the old sock or in the teapot. And they are now realizing that the first place burglars search is the mattress. These home-made hiding-places might as well be labeled, "Valuables Here," for thieves know all about them. Safety deposit boxes are far better. War Bonds in the safety boxes are best.

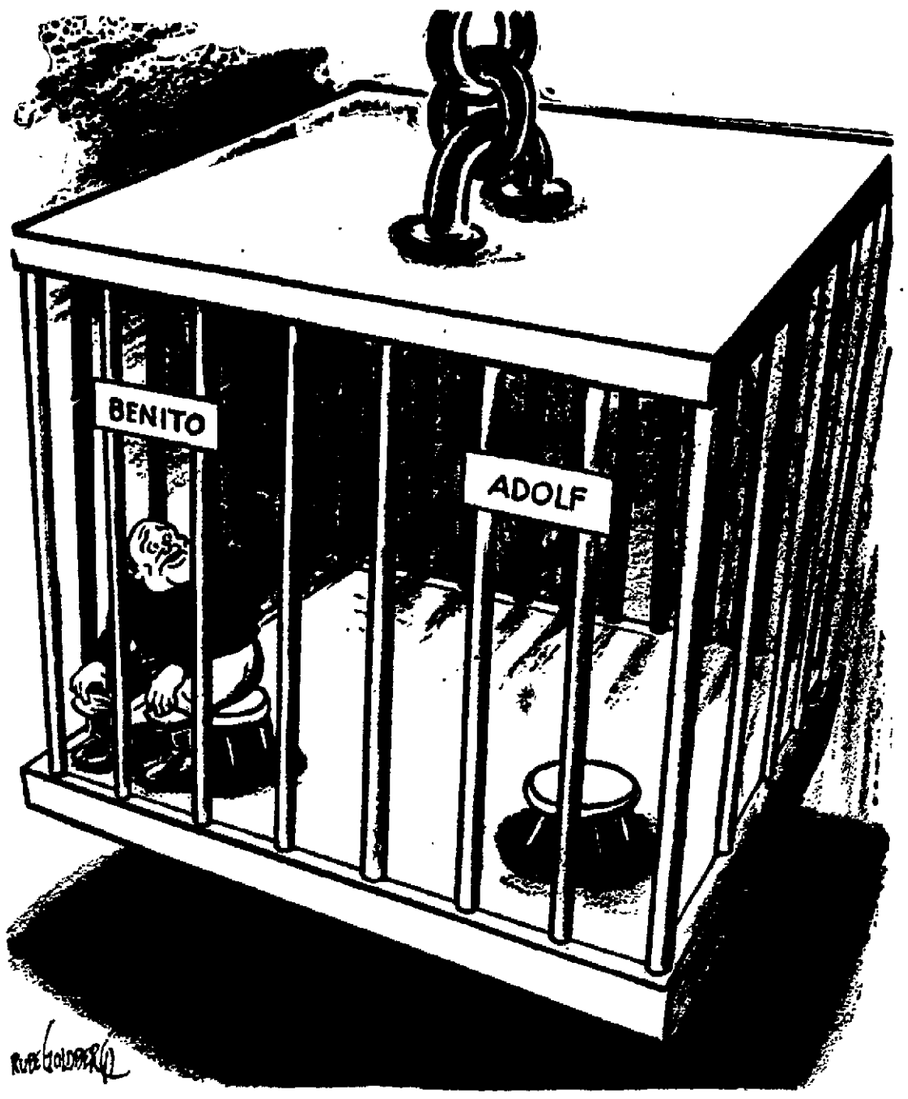

Long Wars Bring Exhaustion

SHORT and successful wars have sometimes been stimulating to the winners. The Spanish-American war, for instance, victorious without much cost or loss, seemed to give impetus to American progress at the turn of the century.

But long and hard wars exhaust nations. France is still stricken by her losses in the last war. It looks as if Germany will be likewise weakened by the present war. And that, if the Teutons are able to learn from hard experience, is one of the best prospects for general world progress in the next few generations.

Coal is hard to get—don't take it for granted that you can get it "when you want it"—better find out now.

ANOTHER MOMENTOUS MEETING SCHEDULED

Find Few Violate Price Ceilings

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Look for a drive to police OPA ceiling prices of consumer durable goods, consumer services such as shoe repairing and laundrying, restaurants, perhaps fuel. It will be conducted by "housewife patrols."

One of the least publicized but most successful undertaking of the OPA was its creation of price panels last fall. Since they were set up, the panels have made phenomenal progress in enforcing the community-wide dollars-and-cents price ceilings on dry groceries in more than 150 cities throughout the nation.

Three members of each of the country's 6,500 rationing boards constitute a "price panel." These members in turn recruit price panel assistants, volunteers whose jobs it is to check on observance of price ceilings. More than 45,000 stores were contacted in the Boston, Atlanta, New York, Chicago and Cleveland area.

RESULTS obtained are little short of amazing, OPA claims. In the Atlanta area, which includes the southeastern portion of the United States, from 90 to 94 per cent of the retail food stores are complying with the ceilings. In Washington, where violations once were openly flagrant, nearly 90 per cent of the 1,800 groceries now are observing the ceilings.

Clubwomen, housewives, professional and small business men who serve as panel assistants are giving full credit for the success. Most price violations found are settled peacefully at conferences with ration boards. Few cases reach the stage where enforcement actions are filed in the courts.

In Detroit, during one two-week period, 246 complaints were investigated and only two had to be given to enforcement agents.

Mrs. Anne P. Flory, who bosses the show from Washington, is enthusiastic.

"We operate on the premise that the store keepers are essentially honest and want to comply," she says. "If we didn't we couldn't run this program."

COMPETENT labor observers in Washington are predicting that a wave of labor trouble—strikes—will break out in September, early October at the latest. Sore spots are the munitions, aircraft, automobile and coal industries. Even administration circles in the capital admit that there is a lot of unrest among workers, due to wage freezing and rising prices.

Head-line maker John L. Lewis may hit the front pages again. His United Mine Workers union now has its plea for wage raises before the War Labor board. A decision is expected soon. If the wage demands are turned down, miners may walk out without awaiting any strike call from Lewis.

A showdown may come when congress returns Sept. 14. At its last session, congress enacted the Smith - Connally Anti - Strike bill, which, among other things, carries provisions that could put a strike leader in jail. But how effective the measure is going to be still awaits a major test.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Thursday, Sept. 13, 1923.

Richland county's fund for Japanese disaster relief passed the $6,500 quota.

Mansfield was in midst of greatest residential building boom city had ever experienced.

Home of A. D. Rowlands, 39 West Second street, was damaged by fire.

Miss Louise Garber returned home after spending summer in Europe.

Paul M. Angle went to Urbana, Ill., to take postgraduate course at Illinois State university.

Announcement was made of the marriage, on September 2, of Miss Maud Cross, of Alexandria, and Dr. A. C. Butterfield, of Mansfield.

W. A. Partello received small burro from friend in the west.

Son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Levi Snyder, Springfield township.

TODAY IN HISTORY

John Alden, hero of Longfellow's famous poem, "The Courtship of Myles Standish," was buried in Duxbury, Mass., Sept. 13, 1687. He died at 88, having outlived all the other signers of the Mayflower Compact, the first agreement for democratic government in our country.

WELL, Bernard Baruch has turned in another of his forthright reports, this time on the manpower situation. He can sit on a park bench and find out more about this country than a couple thousand specialist - analysts - experts with a battalion of telephones and a battalion of assistants.

Of course, they're not going to make the report public. That's probably all right. But most people have an instinctive feeling that when something's kept covered, somebody's afraid of it. You don't keep praise under a bushel if you're in politics.

Some of what Baruch said got around, and it seems he took a crack at cost-plus-fixed-fee war contracts. You can bet, however, that when manufacturers are making hay they're not going to give up the rake without a tussle.

Ice Company Explains.

Editor News-Journal:

Referring to editorial in The News-Journal last Friday, wish to say that we of the National Ice company appreciate our responsibility to the people of our city in food preservation and are doing our utmost to make deliveries to all our customers.

We have been in touch with the U. S. employment office since February for help without results. We wrote the War Labor Board asking permission to increase the pay of our employes so that we could retain and get new employes but were refused two times.

We advertised in your paper Sept. 2, for help urgently needed to make deliveries of ice for preservation of food but the response was not sufficient, so you see we sensed the shortage of help to take care of our business.

I wish to state further that I have been delivering ice personally for the past four weeks, arriving at the plant each morning at 5:30 a. m. and our other employes are working from ten to twelve hours each day. We are doing all that is physically possible—we are not Super-Men.

There's really more belligerency, excitement and general disturbance in Italy than there was when she was "in the war," so to speak. It may be necessary to have an armistice to end the armistice.

Timely Editorial

No Regulation Is Better.

War food administration, which has been working quietly to untangle the food complications that have accumulated since the war began, has issued a revealing order. For two months, it says, slaughterers may work without quota limitations on livestock—for the purpose of equalizing distribution.

The effect of the order, it is pointed out, will not be to give any more meat to purchasers already buying to the limit of their ration coupons. The only change will be in localities where no meat was available legally, due to dislocations caused by the government's quota limitations. While WFA does not admit that no regulation is the best regulation, its order might be given that interpretation—or at least the interpretation that no regulation is better than regulations which creates more problems than it solves.—Canton Repository.

You've Probably Heard This One

An eastern go-getter spied a lazy Indian chief lolling indolently at the door of his teepee somewhere out west.

"Chief," remonstrated the go-getter, "why don't you get yourself a job?"

"Why?" grunted the chief.

"Well, you could earn a lot of money. Maybe 30 or 40 dollars a week."

"Why?" insisted the chief.

"Oh, if you worked hard and saved your money, you'd soon have a bank account. Wouldn't you like that?"

"Why?" again asked the chief.

"For Gosh sakes!" shouted the exasperated go-getter. "With a big bank account you could retire and then you wouldn't have to work any more . . ."

"Not working now," pointed out the Indian.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Considering Form of Government Most Likely to Fit Italy's Needs

WASHINGTON—Shortly before Italy surrendered, President Roosevelt told one of his advisers that he would have no objection to a constitional monarchy in Italy if it were really a constitutional monarchy—in other words, similar to the British system, with free elections and with the king taking orders from the cabinet.

This brings up the toughest problems the Allies face in Italy—helping the Italian people to construct a free, democratic government, yet at the same time not meddling in Italian internal affairs.

Many high-up administration advisers—though by no means all—think it would be a grave mistake to try to tell the Italian people what kind of a government they should adopt. If we start telling occupied peoples how to vote, it is argued, there will be no end to our troubles.

Such meddling would be sure to boomerang, as it did when we sent armies into Archangel and Siberia after the last war to aid White Russian enemies of Bolshevism.

Pro-Russian Activity.

THE SAME trouble may face the Allies in Italy. It is already reported that Gen. Di Nobile, Italian zeppelin commander who crashed near the North Pole and was rescued by the Russians, is now forming a new pro-Russian Communist government for Italy.

Furthermore, the political pendulum normally swings from Fascism to Communism and will probably do so in both Germany and Italy. That is why some of the gentlemen around Secretary Hull were not anxious to have Russia in the Italian picture, and she was not consulted regarding the original armistice terms, although she participated in the final arrangements.

Some of the state department cliques also have been rooting quietly for retention of the House of Savoy, and believe the United States should dictate a conservative government for Italy.

On the other hand, the liberal followers of Sumner Welles inside the state department have been working on a plan whereby we would make an agreement with Russia that all the Allies keep hands off Italy for a political breathing period during which the Italian people would be under non-partisan military rule. At the end of this time Italians would hold their own elections and the government they chose, whether republican, communist or monarchist, would then take over.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Trip.

FRIENDS of Mrs. Roosevelt say that one of the principal reasons which prompted her trip to the South Pacific was to prepare the public for the great number of disabled soldiers who will soon come back into civilian life.

This war is different from World War I in that medical science is saving the lives of many men who, with similar wounds 25 years ago, would have been left under white crosses in Flanders Fields. In this war, a far greater percentage of casualties are being saved by the use of sulfa drugs, blood plasma, and penicillin.

Mrs. Roosevelt told her friends that she wanted to do the job in foreign hospitals which the president would like to do—the same sort of thing which President Lincoln did for wounded men during the Civil war.

She seems to be considerably worried about the social adjustments which will come when veterans return home minus a leg or an arm, to be received back into the family and the community. The problem will be especially hard for sweethearts whose men will return in a far less ablebodied condition than when they went away.

Note: The gasoline consumed in Mrs. Roosevelt's flight to the South Pacific would have been used in any case. She had no private plane, but traveled with other passengers on a regular flight of the Air Transport Command. She did not even take along her secretary and constant companion, Miss Malvina Thompson.

Victor Emmanuel's Future.

ONE THING Italian experts are betting on is that, if the Italian people are really given a free chance to express their will, King Victor Emmanuel will be ousted with as much vigor as the Nazis.

Most Italians can forgive Victor Emmanuel for using poor judgment in permitting Mussolini to take over in 1922 when Gen. Badoglio wanted permission to bar the Black Shirts from Rome.

"Give me a few regiments and I will clean up those loafers in 24 hours," Badoglio urged. But the king said no.

He has had a deep-seated fear and prejudice regarding all agitators ever since his father was assassinated in 1900, but apparently considered Mussolini not in that category.

The King's Kowtow.

ITALIANS chalk this up to bad judgment. But what they cannot forgive is the manner in which the king, after accepting Mussolini and discovering what he really was, continued to pay him abject obedience. Particularly they resented the manner in which the king publicly kissed and embraced Mussolini. Never will they forget the fact that when attending the opera the king waited for Mussolini to leave before he departed himself.

Italians know, of course, how the king had his heels built extra high, wore a tall pointed hat to conceal his diminutive stature, and even had the seat of his automobile raised so that he would appear taller. They can forgive this. They ignored also his rather ridiculous appearance alongside his Montenegrin queen, a lady of Wagnerian proportions.

But what they can never forgive is the manner in which he kowtowed and degraded himself before Mussolini even when he knew that Mussolini was dragging the country daily down to greater disaster. To most Italians Victor Emmanuel is not a monarch but a weak, ridiculous, supine collector of stamps.

ERNIE PYLE Roving Reporter

This Is About a First Sergeant Who Can Do Anything Under the Sun.

SOMEWHERE IN SICILY—(By Wireless)—The backbone of any army company is the first sergeant. I know one who is a beaut.

His name is, of all things, Adelard Levesque. It's pronounced "Levek" and soldiers call him "Pop." He's 42 years old, but doesn't look it.

Of all the thousands of men I've met in the army, he comes the nearest to being the fictional version of the tough, competent, old-line first sergeant.

Levesque was in the last war as a mere boy. He fought in France and stayed on with the Army of Occupation in Germany until 1921.

He isn't a Regular Army man. He spent 20 years out in the big world between wars raising a family, making a living and seeing and doing things. He has been a West Coast iron worker and practically anything else you can mention. He has four sons in the army and, if I remember correctly, one daughter in the navy.

He calls Marysville, Calif., his home. He is a ruggedly handsome fellow with a black mustache and clothes that are always neat, even when dirty. His energy never runs down. He talks loud and continuously. He cusses fluently and orders everybody around, including officers.

At first my mouth hung open in amazement until gradually I began to catch the spirit of Levesque. He isn't smart alecky nor fresh. It's just that he's a natural-born center of any stage. He's a leader, and he's one of these gifted, practical men who can do anything under the sun, and usually do it better than the next fellow.

To top it all off he speaks perfect French and is picking up Italian like a snowball. One of his commanders told me, "He talks too much and too big, but he can back up every word he says. I sure hope we never lose him."

I asked one enlisted man about him since they are the ones his tongue falls on most heavily. The man said, "Hell, I don't know what this company would do without him. Sure he talks all the time, but we don't pay any attention. Listen at him beatin' his gums, now. He musta got out on the wrong side of the bed this morning."

Actually, the sergeant isn't so ferocious. He is widely informed, and his grammar is excellent. He can discuss politics as well as bulldozers. He is alert to your own conversation and to every little thing that goes on.

* * *

ONE day on a mountain road, he stopped our jeep and asked the driver some questions. As he walked back to his own jeep, he turned and ordered my driver, "Go get those maps. Send a bulldozer back up here. Bring five gallons of gas, and get your spare tire fixed. Why don't you take care of your vehicle?"

"Spare tire?" the driver asked.

"Yes," the sergeant roared. "It's flat."

He had discovered it merely by the slight pressure of his hand as he leaned against it while talking to us. Everything he does is like that.

IF YOU could have been on hand during the last half-hour of work on the Point Calava bridge I've written about recently, you would have seen as fine a drama as ever you paid $8.80 a seat for in New York.

The bridge is almost finished. The climax of 24 hours of frenzied work has come. Everybody is through. Only one man can do the final touches of bracing and balancing. That man is sitting on the end of a beam way out there over the chasm, a hammer in his hand, his legs wrapped around the beam as though he were riding a broncho.

The squirrel out there on the beam is, of course, Sergeant Levesque. He wears his steel helmet and his pack harness. He never takes it off, even though the day is sweltering.

His face is dirty and grave and sweating. He is in complete charge of all he surveys. On the opposite banks of the crater, two huge soldier audiences stand watching this noisily profane craftsman play out his role.

Their preoccupation is a tribute to his skill. I've never seen a more intent audience. It includes all ranks, from privates to generals.

"Gimme me some slack. Gimme some slack," the sergeant yells to the winch man on the bank. "That's enough—hold it. Throw me a sledge. Where the hell's a spike? Hasn't anybody got a spike?"

"How does that look from the bank now, Colonel? She about level. Okay, slack away. Watch that airhose. Let her clear down. Hey, you under there, watch yourself!"

Sergeant Levesque drives the final spike deeply with his sledge. He looks around at his work and finds it finished.

With an air of completion, he clambers to his feet and walks the narrow beam back to safety. You could almost sense the curtain going down, and I know everybody in the crowd had to stifle an impulse to cheer.

If somebody writes another "What Price Glory" after this war I know who should play the leading role. Who? Why, Sergeant Levesque, who do you suppose?

Ernie Pyle has returned to this country for a rest. This article was written before his departure from the Mediterranean war zone.

Farmer's Diary

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

INVETERATE FARMER

DO YOU think it'll frost tonight?" an old farmer asked me one day last week.

"I'm afraid it will," I told him, and he looked discouraged.

I've been doin' wishful thinkin' for the past three days when it got so cool, and I was hopin' you'd give me some encouragement. But I've counted the weeks since I heard the first katydid and tonight makes just six. That's the time for first frost.

"Why, my ground was so wet that I just couldn't plant corn and soybeans any sooner. If I'd have 15 days more of good warm ripenin' weather, I'd be safe on 20 acres of beans and 15 of corn. But now the corn's just roasting ears and the beans in their best growin' stage.

"Why, I've even prayed it wouldn't frost tonight! The moon is almost full and the sky is blue and clear—just the setting for killing frost. But it's been 20 years, in these parts since it frosted so early as September ninth!

"I've 30 shoats and 10 milk cows and three brood sows besides my team. If these two crops are lost, I'll have to make sale. I can't go on. I knew it was a risk, but I never was a quitter. Now I feel like there's more weight on my shoulders than I'll be able to bear.

"Sometimes I think farmin' is as bad as playin' the stock market. When you put up your money for two crops and lose 'em in a night. Yet, somehow, I think the land is honester. You can see where your hard-earned money went, at least. Gamblin' just annihilates it, that's all!

"Well, I can't say I've lost everything, even if it does frost! There was a pleasure in plowin' up the soil—all alone in the deep sodded field. I heard the larks and I saw a bluebird start her nest, and I flushed a quail from the tall grass, with only the first egg in her hideout. I had the pleasure of watchin' the first lines of green show down the drill rows of the beans. Maybe the love of such things is something many farmers miss—but even if I lose the crop, I've still had fun! Next year I guess I'll be farmin' again,—"

MRS. MARTIN PRESENTS STUDY CLUB PROGRAM

Speaker Gives Paper On 'Flower Arrangements'; Luncheon Meeting At Women's Club Planned for September 24.

MRS. RALPH MARTIN presented the program at the luncheon meeting of the Garden Study club members, held at the home of Mrs. D. E. Patterson, Ausdale avenue. Mrs. Martin used "Flower Arrangements" as her theme.

In her talk, the speaker explained some of the mechanical devices which are used to help in arrangements. Groupings and color harmonies were also explained. Mrs. Martin used pictures and illustrations with her paper.

A salad luncheon was served to fourteen members and two guests, Mrs. Grant Ward and Mrs. Howard Handel. The small tables, at which guests were seated, were centered with vases of garden flowers.

During the business session, Mrs. Clarence Lisle, the president, completed plans for the club's activities in the Harvest Festival. A display of canned vegetables and fruits was held at the close of the meeting.

A luncheon meeting will be held by the club at the Women's Club, Sept. 24.

Two Brides-Elect Honored By Four Sorority Sisters

TWO brides-elect, Miss Patricia Oberlander and Miss Patricia Stuhldreher were honored guests at a surprise personal shower given Saturday night when four of their sorority sisters entertained for them at the home of Miss Lillian Art, 248 Bartley avenue. Associate hostesses were the Misses Maxene Williams, Adaline Wilging and Joan Watson.

This event was the first in a series of pre-nuptial parties for Miss Oberlander and the last in the series for Miss Stuhldreher.

Dinner was served by candle light at 7 p. m. to the 14 guests in attendance. Centering the dinner table was a huge mirror on which was arranged an attractive assortment of fruit At each side of the centerpiece were the tall white candles in crystal holders.

Place cards were white trimmed in silver. At the place of the honorees was a lovely gardenia corsage tied with silver ribbon.

Decorating the house was a large vase of red roses and vases of marigolds and various garden flowers.

Following the dinner the honorees were presented with their many gifts. A personal gift was given to each by the hostesses.

Bridge was the diversion of the evening with high score prizes awarded to Miss Oberlander and Miss Gerry Fisher.

Miss Stuhldreher, who will wed Pvt. Al Baki, is leaving within the next two weeks for North Camp Polk in Louisiana, where her wedding will take place. Miss Oberlander, bride-elect of Pvt. Robert Henry, has planned her marriage to take place during October. The date of the wedding depends upon Pvt. Henry's furlough.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

With his hand on the doorknob, my father paused for a word of caution

"Don't say you've finished, Mary," he said "Just say you're at work on the code and you think you're making progress Otherwise, we won't be able to hold Ronald with ropes until he finds out what you have discovered. And, of course, say nothing while the waiter is in the room."

He opened the door and gestured to us to precede him. In the sitting room, where the waiter was putting the food on the table, Mary managed to murmur in my ear. "He must think my I Q is zero minus a thousand!"

"You know better than that," I murmured back, and then we joined the others at the luncheon table.

Ronald waited only until the waiter had left the room before bursting out frantically· "What did you find out? Was there any message?"

"Yes, there was," I returned matter-of-factly, "but Mary hasn't finished deciphering it yet, although she thinks she's on the trail."

"Isn't there anything you can tell?" Ronald demanded, and I caught a flicker of my father's eyelids which told me that he was leaving the treatment of Ronald to my judgment.

"Not very much yet," I said The note was addressed to me, and merely said what she had already written in the other one the gangsters sent us, that she didn't want her mother to worry and that everybody was kind to her that she felt safe. All this was put in misspelled words to indicate that she meant the opposite

The Key Words.

"Then she asked me to tell Mary to keep safe her silver cross, her gold bracelet her onal ring, and the amber necklace her grandmother gave her Mary has discovered that those [illegible] things mean certain other things in the code book, but she has to trace each through other key words, and she hasn't finished yet So suppose we get through luncheon before we talk any more about it. Is there really isn't anything to be told yet"

I salved my conscience with the thought that I really was speaking the truth, since my father had forbidden revelation of Mary's discoveries until luncheon should be over.

"But anyway," Ronald said, with a more hopeful note in his voice, there is some message from her."

"Oh, definitely'" Mary assured him, and then my father spoke authoritatively.

"Let us get at our luncheon," he said, and there was little talk until each of us had finished, and Noel had telephoned the waiter to come for the dishes

"If you'll excuse us," Mary said as her husband turned from the telephone, "we'll go back to the bedroom, and I'll try to finish the decoding by the time the waiter has gone again"

I rose with her, and we went back into the bedroom, where Mary drew herself up and gave me a snappy military salute

"Which side of the bed will you take?" she laughed "We haven't a thing to do until they call us back, thanks to your artistic fibbing."

"I don't think I'll lie down," I told her. "I'll just sit here and try to read until they call us in."

"And I suppose I'd better make some copies of these four interpretations, so that your father can have a set, too

"And Ronald?"

"Oh, of course, Ronald," I said, adding "that is, if Father wishes him to have one"

"That of course," she replied, and then fell to work upon her copies, while I tried to read and failed to see a single line of the paper. For poor brave Marion was before my eyes, and through my brain surged dozens of plans for finding her, all of them impracticable.

Summons Comes.

Then the door opened, and my father summoned us back.

When we came into the room, the table had been cleared and stood in the middle of the room with chairs grouped around it My father ushered us to seats, and while the rest of the group seated themselves, he spoke crisply to Mary.

"You have finished your work, I am sure, or you would not have come back"

"Yes, I have finished," she replied

"Then," my father said, with a commanding glance at Ronald, "we are all going to keep complete silence while you make your report upon what you have discovered"

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

SQUEEZE AFTER SQUEEZE

"Progressive Squeeze" is the name used by veteran students of bridge to describe the only kind of squeeze play which produces two tricks by squeezing. All others build up only one. It consists of leading a card of a suit on which the squeezed opponent cannot follow suit, but must select a discard from one of the three other suits. Whichever he discards will build a winner for the squeezer in its suit. Thereupon that winner is led, squeezing the same opponent again this time between the two remaining suits

Pass	6 ♦	Pass	7 NT

North certainly bid them high, wide and handsome, because of super-confidence in his partner as much as in his reading of the high cards shown by South's bids. He put the weight on South, who came through, however, aided by West's action in bidding, doubling and leading the club K. He saw 11 tricks in sight and decided to play West for all outstanding high cards by trying a progressive or repeated squeeze.

Order of tricks brought the club A, diamond A, K, Q and J, heart A and K, diamond 7, and finally the diamond 6. When that was led, the dummy, having discarded one club, now threw another and retained four spades. South kept his spade 7, heart 10 and club J-10. Poor West, trying to hold three spades, had to discard either his heart Q or club Q. He chose the heart, whereupon the heart 10 squeezed him between his three spades and the club He finally tossed the latter, so that the declarer really now had four trick winners left to use on the last three tricks.

No matter what West did, however, he was licked. If he had thrown his club Q then, two clubs and two spades would have finished the hand for South.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer. North. East-West vulnerable.)

What is perfect play of this hand by both sides after South gets into 3-No Trumps following bids of diamonds and hearts by himself and his partner?

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, September 14.

Generally adverse conditions may dominate the affairs of this days, both personal and business. It would be well to work along lines of least resistance, by attending only to routine or impefative matters until the storm clouds pass away and a more encouraging atmosphere prevails. Elders, superiors and others may be found antagonistic or uncooperative, there may be tricky and underhand situations to cope with, and stubborn obstacles or impediments combine to make it a day to seek diversion or cultivate philosophic attitudes.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to have a year in which it may be difficult to gain much stability or headway in affairs, because of impediments, obstacles, delays and disappointments, difficult to manipulate into constructive channels As well there may be treachery, intrigue and peculiar circumstances, with elders and superiors opposing cherished plans. Domestic and affectional life as well as the health may have their problems and perplexities. With fortitude and a philosophic state of mind determine to make the best of passing frustrations and attend to routine or urgent demands.

A child born on this day may be stubborn, difficult, lacking in energy and ambition, and disposed to do things in the easiest way, thus antagonizing elders or superiors Its health should be taken into account.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Eighteen guests were entertained at a surprise party Saturday, honoring the birthday of Forrest Fishburn, Loraine avenue. Out of town guests were Mrs. Grace Fishburn and Mrs. Helen Ridenour and son, Paul, of Fredericktown. Prizes in games were awarded to Mrs. Raymon Massie and Fred Thirline. Luncheon was served late, in the evening.

THE "Fall round-up" of the Beta Gamma club of the Mansfield Y. W. C. A., for the purpose of getting old members back into the club and for new members and guests will be held at the Y. building Wednesday evening, Sept. 15 at 7:30 p. m.

Miss Vivian Roberts, president of the club is chairman of the round-up and has planned a full program of music, program previews and registrations. Refreshments will be served.

Miss Mary Dove and Miss Marie Sedlak are in charge of decorations, entertainment and refreshments. Glimpses of program plans will be presented by Miss Helen Rantz and Miss Alice Rhoads. Mrs. Leon Ford, vice president and membership chairman, will receive registrations for club membership.

Any employed young woman between the ages of 18 and 30 is eligible for membership in Beta Gamma. The program of the club provides for expression of the abilities and interests of the members as well as learning new skills. Emphasis is placed upon the relationships within the group based upon belief in and respect for the worth of each individual.

A typical program evening will feature group singing under the leadership of Miss Estelle Smith, a few moments of worship arranged by club members, and announcements, from 7:30 to 8 p. m. From 8 to 9 p. m. each member will choose one of three interest groups. They are dramatics, directed by Earl Heasley and Miss Eleanor Wilging, a YWCA project, and a varied group of discussions with guest leaders. From 9 to 10 p. m. there will be an informal social hour.

Beta Gamma is organized and carried on by the members with Miss Bertha Gregory, executive secretary, advising.

Shower Given For Mrs. Bright

Mrs Fred Dillon, sr., and Mrs. Fred Dillon, jr., mother and sister-in-law of Mrs. William Bright, entertained in her honor with a personal shower Saturday night. Friends and their families were in attendance.

Games, contests, music and dancing were enjoyed during the evening. Prizes were won by Mike Mayer, Helen Weimer, Mrs. Fred Foss, Fred Dillon, sr., Fred Dillon, jr., Phyllis Dillon, Evelyn Kellpinger and William Bright.

When luncheon was served from a long table, an appropriate centerpiece and appointments in pastel shades of blue, pink, green and yellow were used.
